Junior High School Referendum Asked in Council

THREE CONTRACTS ARE TURNED BACK TO SCHOOL BOARD

Mayor Pro Tem Ashley Rules That Primary Referendum Would Be Without Binding Effect.

PLEAS FOR SCHOOL CONTRACTS VOICED

Savage and Gann Appeal to Council in Vain for Beginning of Work on Structures.

After one of the bitterest councilmanic fights of the year, city council Monday afternoon adopted a resolution offered by Councilman George Lyle, of the eleventh, to ask the city democratic subcommittee to hold a referendum to ascertain whether the junior high school system, operated in connection with the Atlanta public schools, should be abolished; declined to award any contracts for completion of the Bass, Brown and O'Keefe Junior High schools, and voted to send the recommendations for contract awards back to the school board.

Despite an appeal by Councilman Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the finance committee of city council; Jack C. Savage, of the ninth; Harry York, of the sixth; and Frank Reynolds, of the eighth, and by Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth, who is chairman of the school committee of city council; W. Guy Dobbs, of the seventh, and Robert Gann, of the sixth, proponents of a move to pass the resolution without referring it to the finance committee for consideration and to defer any action on bids for award of junior high school contracts succeeded in pushing their motions through council.

Passage Is Surprise.

Passage of the Lyle resolution was a distinct surprise and took council by storm. In the heat of the debate several members appealed to the chair asking for rulings as to whether a primary referendum would have any binding effect on the school board as to abolition of the junior high school system. Mayor Pro Tem Ashley ruled that primary referendums are regarded only as expressions of the people and can have no legal standing in accordance with rulings of legal authorities.

The motion to refer the Lyle paper to the finance committee for consideration stood 7 for and 23 against, and the vote to adopt the Lyle resolution was 23 to 7.

Those voting for the paper were Pennington, Moon, Hartsfield, Gann, Dobbs, Millican, Loehr, Wardlaw, McCutcheon, Turner, Chosewood, Huiet, Vaughan, White, Bowden, Barrett, York, Hardy, Moore, Ozburn, Drennon, Callaway and Lyle. Those voting against its passage were Couch, Murphy, House, Reynolds, Savage, Saunders and Smith.

Vote on the motion to pass the paper came after the unsuccessful effort to refer the resolution to the finance committee.

Only one vote was taken as a test as to whether all contract awards in connection with completion of the three junior high schools should be

Emory University Control of Grady Goes to Committee

Resolution of Councilman Bowden Is Sent to 1928 Hospitals Body by Unanimous Vote.

CHANGE IS NEEDED, AUTHOR DECLARES

Members of Committee Indicate No Action Will Be Taken Until After Court Decision.

City council, by unanimous vote, Monday afternoon declined to take definite action looking towards placing the white unit of Grady hospital under administration of Emory university, referring a resolution empowering City Attorney James L. Mayson to open negotiations with the university on such a basis to the 1928 hospitals and charities committee of council.

The resolution was offered by Councilman James E. Bowden, of the fifth ward, and was referred on motion of Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, of the second ward, who is a member of the 1928 hospitals and charities committee.

Change Is Demanded.

Mr. Bowden's paper was presented in answer to a wave of sentiment favoring some kind of change to lift the institution from petty politics and factional bickerings. It follows charges that the continued warfar of factions has resulted in "deplorable" conditions at the hospital.

Expressions of members of the 1928 hospitals and charities committee indicated that no definite action will be taken on the Bowden resolution and that no recommendation will be made to council until litigation now involving staffs and executive committees named, respectively, by the 1927 and 1928 hospitals and charities committees is settled in courts which may

REMUS MUST STAY IN OHIO ASYLUM, PENDING APPEAL

Lima, Ohio, April 2.—(AP)—George Remus, Cincinnati wife slayer, must remain in the Lima state hospital for criminal insane until the decision of the court of appeals, adjudging him sane and ordering him released, is fought out in the state supreme court.

Attorney General Edward C. Turner and other counsel representing the state, filed a petition in error in the supreme court at Columbus late today asking for reversal of the decision and at the same time the court of appeals here refused to admit Remus to bond.

The petition in error automatically stays the order of the appellate court until a final ruling is made. It was filed by the state after the appeals court had refused a rehearing today on Remus' application for release.

The former bootleg baron was committed to the Lima asylum last December when a jury at Cincinnati found him not guilty of the killing of his estranged wife, Imogene, on grounds of insanity.

SMITH AND HOOVER WIN IN MICHIGAN; WISCONSIN TODAY

Death of Willis Throws Ohio Back Into Lap of Others; Hoover and Al Alone in Jersey.

Detroit, April 2.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, republican, and Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, democrat, were given indorsement as presidential nominees by Michigan voters in a presidential primary today. Unorficial reports indicated that the total vote for presidential preference was one of the lightest in the history of the state. Neither candidate was opposed on his party ticket.

It was estimated that fewer than one-tenth of Detroit's 463,915 registered voters went to the polls.

JERSEY LIST CLOSES WITH HOOVER ALONE.

Trenton, N. J., April 2.—(AP)—The makeup of the republican and democratic tickets for delegates to the national conventions was complete when the election bureau closed tonight, so far as the state party organizations were concerned. Today was the last for candidates for delegate and alternate delegate to file their nominating papers.

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, is the only candidate who has filed for the presidential preference primary in either party. Virtually all of the republican candidates are pledged to Hoover.

In several instances republican candidates are pledged to President Coolidge, as first choice, and Hoover second choice, while the candidates for delegates at large and alternate delegates are bracketed as favoring Hoover.

The democratic candidates are pledged to Governor Smith, of New York.

SMITH SWEEPS NEW YORK STATE.

Success Seen In Guard Drive For Unveiling

With $2,000 Raised, Sum Needed Expected To Be in Hand Today.

With approximately $2,000 already raised for the fund needed to entertain the noted military commands from leading cities of the east, coming to Atlanta on April 9 for the unveiling of the statue of Robert E. Lee on the side of Stone Mountain, leaders of the Old Guard Monday night were confident that the sum needed would be available tonight and that success of the military feature was assured.

Originally it had been planned to make a final decision Monday as to whether the invitations would stand or be recalled, owing to the lack of funds to provide entertainment in keeping with Atlanta's reputation for hospitality. Monday, however, it was decided to extend the time limit until today.

"It should be distinctly understood that these historic military commands are not the guests of the Old Guard, but of the city and state," Joseph A. McCord, general chairman of the Old Guard committee, pointed out Monday. "The Old Guard merely stands in the place of official hosts appointed by the Stone Mountain Memorial association."

Mr. McCord said that Monday night had been the final time for a decision by the Old Guard's committee on the invitations, but that it was decided to extend the time until this afternoon. "Certain contracts necessarily

SHELVERTON LOW BIDDER ON PRYOR, CENTRAL VIADUCTS

Local Concern Makes Estimate of $587,880 for Bridge Work; Seaboard and Southern Co. Second

The Shelverton Construction company ranked as low bidder in the proposals for the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts and other items in that viaduct construction program when sealed bids were opened Monday afternoon in city council. The Shelverton bid was $587,880. The Seaboard and Southern Construction company was next lowest, the Nichols Contracting company third and the MacDougald Construction company, fourth.

Following the opening of bids, which were referred to the bridge committee of council for tabulation, Alderman Guy Dobbs, of the seventh ward, chairman of the bridge committee, called a special session for 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to be held jointly with the viaduct contract committee of the bond commission, at which the low bidder will be recommended to council for the awarding of the contract.

The bids will be tabulated today by William A. Hansell, usperintendent of construction, for the bridge committee. Nine companies entered bids for the construction work, while only one company offered for the electrical work alone. Bids of the nine construction companies include the installation of electric lighting.

List of Bids.

The bids for all nine items of the construction program were as follows: Siems, Helmers & Schaffner, Inc., $745,379; Seaboard and Southern

DAWES REFUSES WILLIS SUPPORT

Vice President Declares Ohioans Should Vote for Lowden; Ballots Today Are Unimportant.

BY SAM W. SMALL.
Special Constitution Correspondent.

Washington, April 2.—Political leaders on capital hill here today gave little significance to primary results in Michigan today and New York and Wisconsin tomorrow. Outcomes in all cases are discounted as foregone in advance of actual counts. Also the Maine convention of democrats tomorrow is regarded as a routine Smith registration. The state delegation to Houston is always included in Smith's column when speculative lists are made.

It was stated with some accent of authority this evening that Vice President Dawes has let the Willis leaders know in Ohio, who are to consider tomorrow their future course prior to the primary April 24, that he does not desire his name to figure in their plans. The assumption is that he believes, if they decide to carry on in militant opposition to the Hoover slate of delegates, they should act under the Willis flag with the majority of their delegates already pledged to Governor Lowden as their second choice.

Swing to Dawes.

Word coming from Willis headquarters sources is to the effect that a subrosa understanding obtains among the Willis-named delegates that whenever Dawes is substituted in the balloting at Kansas City for his friend Governor Lowden, the delegation, if chosen, April 24, will swing solidly to Dawes.

The latest proposal here for a compromise ticket, if and when a Hoover-Lowden deadlock must be broken, is Dawes for president, and General Pershing for vice president. The suggestion finds strong favor from influential party personages.

Surprise in Georgia.

Some genuine surprise was expressed in Georgia circles here today at the reported presidential preference poll at the University of Georgia, as reported by the Independent Magazine, at Boston. The poll showed 196 for Smith, 31 for Reed and 10 for Ritchie, with a few scattering. On the republican side the poll revealed 60 for Hoover, 24 for Dawes and 7 for Lowden. It is assumed that most

Fall Names Three Leaders of Party In Bribery Alibi

Former Secretary Says Two Senators and Member of Cabinet Advised Using McLean Check.

SMOOT AND LENROOT DENY HIS CHARGES

Tells of Visits to Sick Room and Efforts To Shield Party From Expected Attacks.

El Paso, Texas, April 2.—(AP)—Three republican leaders—a former cabinet member, who is now in Europe, a senator and a former senator—have been named by Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, as having advised him to write the famous McLean letter to the senate Teapot Dome committee in 1923 in an effort to conceal a loan of $100,000 from Edward Doheny, oil magnate.

Fall, his friends revealed today, declared that the party leaders urged him to cover up the loan from Doheny in the fear that public knowledge of the transaction would result in charges that the republican administration had favored the oil man in its Mexican oil policy. He said the three men visited him while he was sick in bed in Washington.

Followed Leaders.

Fall's story was that he acted at the suggestion of the party leaders when he wrote the senate committee that the $100,000 came from McLean. He said it was felt the fact that Doheny had just loaned $10,000,000 to the Mexican government with the consent of the administration might be made the basis for criticism of the administration's Mexican policy if it became known publicly that a cabinet member had received $100,000 from Doheny.

The McLean letter was the only act in the whole oil deal of which he was ashamed, Fall declared.

Fall related that he had received

CHINESE POLICE BEHEAD 230 REDS IN CANTON RAIDS

Canton, China, April 3.—(AP)—(Tuesday)—Police today terminated a series of raids on communist strongholds with the execution of 230 persons, including eight women.

The authorities said that a red plot to capture Canton similar to the uprising of last December was being planned. In 18 raids 463 persons were arrested.

Large quantities of communist literature, grenades, arms and ammunition were confiscated. Twenty-five thousand red neckties, similar to those worn by the communists in the December uprising, also were seized.

ARKANSAS PRAYS FOR RAIN AS FIRE SWEEPS FORESTS

Reserves Flooded Year Ago Now Being Razed by Flames; Child Is Killed; 600 Take Field.

Waldron Ark., April 2.—(AP)—Their fury unabated by the efforts of more than 600 men, forest fires tonight were sweeping through Arkansas' two national forest reserves after having claimed their first victim, a child who was burned to death when the Tilley home in Baxter county was destroyed. Five new outbreaks were reported in the Ouachita reserve following early reports that the flames were under control while in the Ozarks reserve fires were being reported with alarming regularity. Five warrants for arrests of persons charged with setting fires in the forest were issued today.

The Ozark national forest is in north central Arkansas and is more thickly settled than the Ouachita reserve, farther to the south and southwest. Headquarters of the Ozark forestry service at Russellville said most of the fires were reported since yes-

STORMS CONTINUE NORTHWEST FURY

Pacific Slopes From Canada to San Francisco Lashed by High Winds and Driving Rain.

Seattle, Wash, April 2.—(AP)—Beseiged on land and sea, the northwest today felt the full fury of a parting wintry thrust that lashed the region from Saskatoon to San Francisco with rain, snow, cloudbursts and terrific winds and imperiled shipping along the gale-swept coastline.

Swollen rivers caused near flood conditions in some areas, others were beclogged with ice jams and snows blanketed the mountains while in the broad Pacific two ships were known to be in distress.

Both the sailing schooner K. V. Kruse, 117 days out of Australia for Seattle and the steamer Jane Nettleton, southbound from Puget Sound, reported they were in trouble. Five men who Saturday took off in a lifeboat to aid the distressed schooner Helen B. Sterling off the Oregon coast were adrift in the stormy sea.

Saskatoon, Sask., reported a threatened repetition of last week's flood in the Pike lake valley, 20 miles southwest, with the breaking up of a 120-mile ice jam which caused the first flood and two smaller ice jams forming and the waters of the Saskatchewan river rising.

Southwest storm warnings were ordered along the coast north from San Francisco today. Heavy rains were causing the Coquille river in Oregon and its tributaries to rise, menacing lowlands and flooding highways and railroad tracks. Train service south of Coquille was held up today. Logging crews in the area were withdrawn to await better weather.

High water in the Willamette river at Portland flooded an airport and the airplanes were removed to Vancouver, Wash.

In northern California rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains were reported from many points.

A train on the Tonopah & Goldfield railroad, near Tonopah, Nev., was derailed today by sand blown by a high wind. No one was injured and little damage was done.

The five men adrift are members of the Suislaw coast guard station, Oregon. Unable to get in across the bar yesterday after the coast guard cutter Haida took the Helen B. Sterling in tow, their lifeboat was anchored off the bar until this morning when the anchor line apparently broke and the boat went out to sea. She was believed to have drifted northward. The men on board are Captain Stitt, Clyde Deal, Joe Barnhart, Arnold McCready and Elmer Peterson.

EVANS CONSPIRED TO SLAY COBURN, SAYS STEPHENSON

Jailed Indiana Boss, Charges Wizard Caused Fox To Kill Atlantan in Fall of 1923.

"IT'S ALL ROT," SAYS FOX FROM PRISON

"It's all rot," said Phillip Fox, now serving a life sentence at Milledgeville for the murder of W. S. Coburn, when told Monday night by a Constitution correspondent that D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of Indiana, had charged that the killing was instigated by Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans.

"There is not a word of truth in the accusation," said Fox, "and I can't understand why Stephenson should have given out such a statement. In the course of business, while I was employed at the imperial palace I met Stephenson, but so far as I can remember we never passed more than a dozen words. This much is certain. There is absolutely no foundation for the charge that Evans had anything to do with the shooting of Coburn."

Pittsburgh, April 2.—(AP)—D. C. Stephenson, former head of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, who is serving a life term in the Indiana state prison, charges in a deposition filed in federal court here today that "Imperial Wizard" W. H. Evans, of the klan, instigated the slaying of Captain William S. Coburn, Atlanta, Ga., attorney, because Coburn "was going to bring out some embarrassing matters in a suit against the klan."

Captain Coburn, the deposition said, was actually killed by "Phil Fox, who Evans told me he was filling full of 'poisoned meat,' elaborating on this statement, so that I was given to understand that he was telling Fox that he, Evans, could prove that Coburn was circulating stories derogatory to the character of Mrs. Fox. Finally, Fox became so incensed that he said he was going to kill Coburn."

The deposition, obtained at Michigan City prison by Van A. Barrickman, Pittsburgh attorney, who is counsel for interests seeking to have the klan barred from functioning in Pennsylvania, also says the klan never had a national policy, its entire ambitions being based on the personal ambitions of Evans.

Stephenson said an audit was never made of its fiscal affairs.

The Indiana prisoner charged that

Funeral Fund Used To Pitch 'Wild Party'

Aged Negress Is Out of Luck, and Josie Is in Jail.

Josie Jackson, negress, of 81 Horton street, was bound over for the Fulton county grand jury in $500 bond in Recorder Murphy M. Holloway's court Monday on charges of larceny, after she is alleged to have "pitched a wild party" Saturday night with $65 belonging to Fannie Kelly, 80, another negress, which her son, Paul Jackson, 6 years old, is said to have found in the street.

It was brought out in the hearing that the $65 was the total worldly possessions of the aged negress, and that she was saving this amount to defray her burial expenses. She carried it around in a tobacco sack, and is believed to have lost it just in front of her home, 36 Horton street.

Evidence at the hearing was to the effect that Paul Jackson had found the money in front of the house, and carried it around with him for some time. He showed it to a negro man, who told him that it was counterfeit and who gave the boy five cents for a $10 bill.

Evidence showed that the boy had carried the money home to his mother, and she, investigating, ordered him to take the nickel back and get the $10 bill, which he did. She then, according to the evidence, sent him out after whisky and held a big party at her home.

The Kelly negress, missing her money, became suspicious and reported to police. Detectives John Davis and W. J. Anderson arrived at the Jackson home in the middle of the celebration, it is said, and arrested Josie.

DRIVEN INTO DEBT TO PAY PATRONAGE LETTER DECLARES

Ben Davis, Negro National Committeeman, Named in One Letter Found on Dead Man.

DAVIS DENIES PART IN ENFORCING FEES

Douglas Postmaster Wrote Brother Describing "Forced Assessments" Before Shooting.

Douglas, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—Charges that the republican party had exacted donations from him that had driven him into debt and that "they are still claiming more" were made by L. S. Peterson, democratic postmaster here for more than 12 years, in a letter written shortly before he shot and killed one of his clerks and committed suicide yesterday.

The shooting took place just after Peterson had been relieved of the post by a recently appointed successor.

Peterson, who received an annual salary of $2,700, said that these contributions amounted to more than $2,000 over a period of five years and indicated that they had been demanded in return for patronage under which he was permitted to retain his position.

His letter, addressed to his brother, J. H. Peterson, and read at the coroner's inquest, also charged that he had been "framed" by two employees of the postoffice, one of whom, J. E. Kirkland, was his victim.

"The republican party has pulled me for over $2,000 in the last five years," he wrote, "and they are still claiming more on me now. Thomas W. Overstreet, the inspector, and Elton Kirkland, money order clerk, are to blame for it all. They have done everything against me that they could do. They have framed me.

"These donations are responsible for my financial condition. What they have taken away from me is why I am in debt today. I understand that they are going to put me out tonight. For this reason I cannot face my friends any longer."

Authorities also made public today a letter found in Peterson's pocket after the shooting, in which he was directed to send money to R. H. Johnson, postmaster at Ocilla, Ga., to be sent in turn to Ben J. Davis, negro republican national committeeman for Georgia, in Atlanta. It was dated September 27, 1927, but bore no signature.

Peterson, who first was appointed by President Wilson and who was widely known in this section, did not elaborate on his charges against Kirkland and Overstreet, but friends said he and the former had been in disagreement for some time over various office matters.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER KILLS NEGRO FARMER

Valdosta, Ga., April 2.—(Special.) Columbus Coleman was almost instantly killed Saturday night on the Nashville road, a buggy in which he was riding being mashed to splinters by a motor car.

Coleman was a negro farmer who had been visiting Valdosta during the afternoon and was on his way home, accompanied by his wife. His wife was severely cut about the head. The mule escaped with only a few scratches.

The driver of the car did not stop to find out what had happened, leaving the dead and injured by the side of the road.

JASPER OPENS DRIVE FOR JUNIOR COLLEGE

Oxford, Ga., April 2,—(Special)—Today inaugurates the drive in Jasper county to secure the quota for Emory Junior College to be established here in September. Enthusiasm prevails throughout the county and a successful canvass is assured. In connection with the campaign the Rev. A. W. Rees, principal of Emory University academy, by invitation of the Rev. O. L. Kelley, pastor, delivered an earnest sermon in behalf of Christain education at Shady Dale yesterday. In the course of his remarks he spoke of the proposed Emory College Junior, its advantages to this section of the state, and other phases of this important subject. His statements were received with tokens of appreciation and many pledged themselves to do their part in the canvass, which begins today.

Also in connection with this campaign, Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, presiding elder of the Oxford district, who has throughout been actively enlisted to secure this college and who is a trustee of Emory university, visited First Methodist church at Monticello, and delivered a sermon along the same lines at that of Professor Rees at Shady Dale. The Rev. John L. Hall, pastor of the First Methodist church at Monticello in introducing Dr. Dempsey, called ateution to the presiding elder's relation to the college interests of the conference, pointing out that for five years he was secretary-treasurer of the Christain education movement, that for seven years he has been secretary of education in the North Georgia conference, which office he still holds, that he is a trustee of three North Georgia colleges, and for eight years has been the annual representative at the sessions at Memphis, of the Southern Methodist Educational association.

"With these qualifications," said the Rev. Hall, "We do not wonder at the zeal shown by Dr. Dempsey for the founding of Emory Junior College."

CALHOUN, NEGRO, GIVEN LIFE TERM IN MURDER TRIAL

Pleading guilty to a charge of murder, Albert Calhoun, negro, was given a consent verdict of guilty Monday in Fulton superior court and was sentenced by Judge E. E. Pomeroy to life imprisonment. Calhoun was the fourth negro to face the charge of murder growing out of the death of Pat Daugherty, an aged negro.

Calhoun turned state's evidence in the case, and signed a confession implicating Will Gilham, Will George and Ed Capers, negroes, in the murder. Gilham, George and Capers were found guilty Friday and sentenced to death.

THOMASVILLE PLANS ANNUAL ROSE SHOW

Thomasville, Ga., April 2.—(Special.)—The date for the annual Thomasville rose show will be definitely announced immediately after Easter. The day in all probability will be either Friday, April 20, or Friday, May 4, the idea being not to conflict with grand opera week, commencing April 23, in Atlanta.

A committee last week was out arranging for rose show prizes, of which there will be approximately 150 awarded. Most of these prizes have now been donated. Excessive rainfall in March accelerated the blooming seasons, and a few warm days will bring the flowers into bloom in great profusion. The roses this year will be much more numerous than in 1927, and more perfectly formed.

COACH FIELDING YOST ON ROTARY PROGRAM

Lay Cornerstone Of New Church In Thomasville

Thomasville, Ga., April 2.—(Special.)—With appropriate ceremonies, the chief feature of which was an address made by L. D. Newton, editor of the Baptist Christian Index, of Atlanta, the cornerstone of the new Thomasville First Baptist church was laid here Sunday afternoon.

In the cornerstone a box was placed made of copper and sealed, containing a roll of the members of the church, names of those contributing to erection of the edifice, officers of the church, officers and teachers in the Sunday school, Woman's Missionary union and Ladies' Aid societies, church members who are American Legionnaires, personnel of the building committee, names of the architect and the contractor, copy of a book by a former pastor, Rev. Robert H. Jarris, a complete history of Mercer association, a picture of the old church, recently demolished to make room for the new building, Confederate money bearing pictures of Alexander H. Stephens and of Jefferson Davis, and a copy of the Thomasville Times-Enterprise of March 31, 1928.

The new church is a brick structure to cost, when completed, approximately $100,000, and will seat 1,100 people in the main auditorium and gallery, with basement rooms for Bible classes. There will be a four-story Sunday school building in connection equipped to care for 1,000 scholars. According to contract, the church is to be ready for occupancy September 1, next.

AMERICAN BUSINESS CLUB TO HEAR DR. COX

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory university, will address the regular meeting the American Business club at 11 o'clock today in the Henry Grady hotel on "Citizenship and Education." Dr. C. C. Aven will be in charge of the program.

A feature of the meeting will be the launching of a drive by the club's committee on civic affairs to have all members registered in order to be eligible for voting in the approaching elections.

CROWD WATCHES PAY ROLL ROBBERY IN FRONT OF BANK

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 2.—(AP)—In sight of a dozen persons, two messengers for the Franklin Savings bank today were robbed of $5,500 in cash and $11,000 in checks and money orders by three men who stepped from an alley with a leveled rifle, snatched a bag carried by one of the messengers and escaped in an automobile. First reports were that the holdup men secured $10,000 in cash but a checkup reduced the sum to $5,500.

The messengers had just left the plant of the Ward Baking company, where they had collected deposits, when met by the holdup men.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."—(adv.)

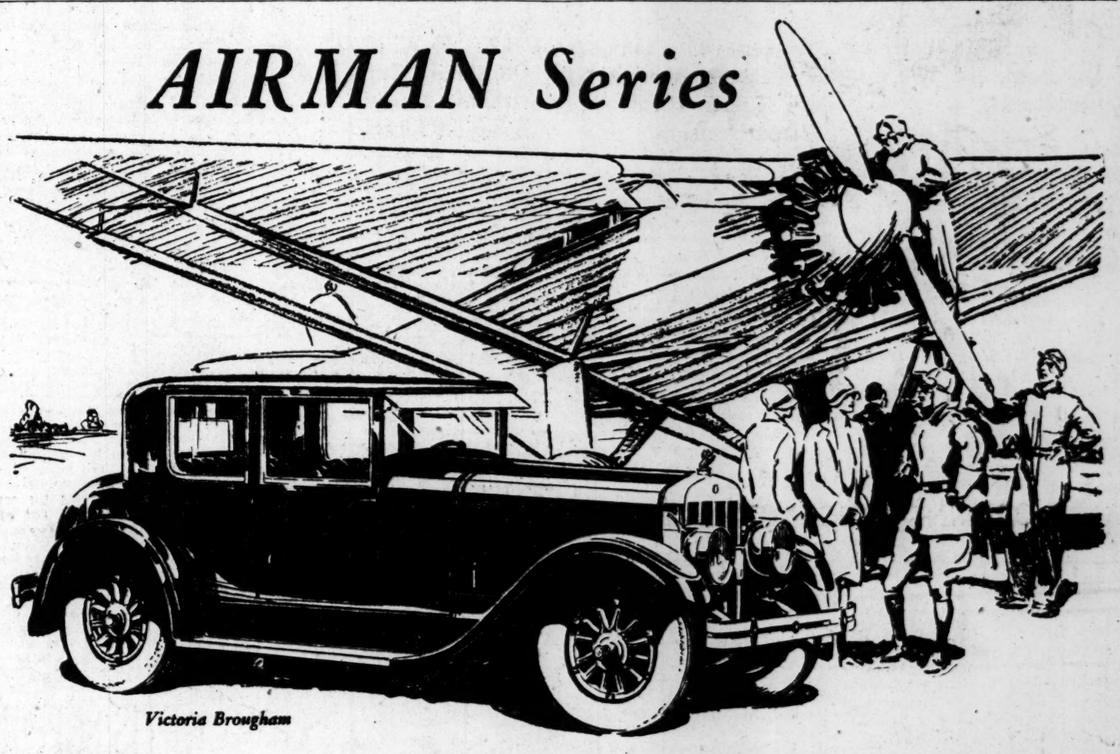
AIRMAN Series



Victoria Brougham

The most comfortable mile-a-minute car ever built

HOUR after hour you speed along—in comfort. You actually find yourself less fatigued after an all-day Airman drive, than after a three hour stretch in most other cars.

Immediately you ask, "Why haven't other cars ever achieved such riding ease, such engine smoothness, such supreme roadability?"

The answer is—because they don't have the Airman's full-elliptic springs—the Airman's flexible chassis—the Airman's scientific light-weight construction and a dozen other exclusive Franklin features.

Even at top speed you have no sense of engine strain, no desire to let up on the throttle. From the fully-balanced, seven-bearing crankshaft to the double fly-wheels, every factor known to engineering has been employed toward the reduction of vibration.

COUCH PROBE HEARING IS SET FOR TONIGHT

The councilmanic investigating committee, probing charges that Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth ward, received or was to have received $7,000 in commissions from purchase by the city of a site for the merger of the Haygood-State schools will be resumed at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the city council chamber, and the committee will be restricted in its inquiry to the Couch transaction alone.

Councilman W. E. Saunders, of the twelfth ward, who had announced he would offer a resolution asking that powers of the committee be broadened to include all transactions from bond funds, failed to present the paper out of deference to wishes of Mr. Couch and other members of council.

Mr. Couch previously had said he would offer such a paper, but later decided to "demand a probe of the charges launched against me without any additions which might be construed as an attempt to throw a smoke screen about myself in my own defense."

"I have decided not to offer my paper at this time," Mr. Saunders said, "because I have been requested not to do so. It might be misunderstood."

Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, is chairman of the probing committee. Other members are Councilmen George Lyle, of the eleventh ward; Ben T. Huiet, of the third; Raleigh Drennon, of the ninth, and Ellis B. Barrett, of the fifth.

the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, was Miss Elizabeth Blalock, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Z. Blalock.

She was president of the Atlanta Junior league in 1926 and during her successful administration she launched the idea to open the tea room in the Medical Arts building, the funds accruing from this source being used to carry on the philanthropic work of this organization. During her term of office she arranged for the special Junior League edition of The Constition, which netted a goodly sum for the organization. Mrs. Black was a member of the Cherokee Garden club, formed recently in Atlanta by prominent young society matrons, being one of the most popular members of the club.

Betty Black, aged 8, and Eugene Black III, aged 3, are her children, and her sister is Mrs. E. L. Pugh, of Atlanta, while F. W. Blalock, assistant cashier, and Dr. W. J. Blalock, president of the Fulton National bank, are her brother and uncle.

Mrs. P. D. Pollock, Mrs. I. F. Gibbs and Misses Lula and Judith Selman, of Monroe, are Mrs. Black's aunts.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL REFERENDUM ASKED

adopted, and that was on the general contracts.

Mr. Couch offered the contract papers and made a motion for adoption. A substitute to send the recommendation back to the board of education gained precedence and was passed, 17 to 12. Mr. Couch then moved that all other contracts dealing with the three projects take the same course. This was passed by viva voce vote.

Those voting to send the contracts back to the board were Moon, Hartsfield, Millican, Murphy, House, Loehr, Wardlaw, McCutcheon, Turner, Vaughan, White, Bowden, Barrett, Moore, Ozburn, Callaway, Lyle, while those voting against reference were Pennington, Couch, Gann, Dobbs, Chosewood, Huiet, Reynolds, York, Savage, Saunders and Smith.

Report Is Accepted.

Although a councilmanic conference committee's report, which sought to pave the way for completion of the three junior high schools in accordance with original plans was accepted by city council with but one dissenting vote, that of Councilman George Lyle, that body declined to pass the project for which the committee had been constituted, and sent the recommendations for award of the contracts back to the board.

Those voting for receiving and approving the committee's action in breaking a deadlock of council, the bond commission and the board of education regarding construction of the high schools were Loehr, Wardlaw, McCutcheon, Turner, Chosewood, Huiet, Vaughan, White, Bowden, Barrett, York, Moore, Ozburn, Reynolds, Savage, Callaway, Saunders and Smith. Council only cast ballots in this since it contemplated an outlay of approximately $228,000 for acquisition of sites on which to construct a junior high school in the eastern and another in the western sections of the city; improvements at the Tenth Street, Luckie and James L. Key schools.

Members of the aldermanic board also gave this paper their approval and it will go to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale today for his signature.

In referring the contracts for the three schools back to the board, council did not reject them, but took the action to ascertain whether it would be possible, if the schools are completed in accordance with specifications, to utilize them as elementary or senior high schools in the event the junior high schools were abolished.

Branding the referendum as an attack on the board of education and the school administration, Councilman Savage appealed for passage of the contracts.

"Every room and every facility provided in this junior high school program can be utilized to advantage by the school department even if the junior high schools are eliminated," Mr. York declared. "We have procrastinated with these bond issue projects long enough, and should approve these contracts, referendum or no referendum. The school board is not bound by a primary referendum, and that is established as good law.

"There are hundreds of working men in Atlanta who need employment. We should pass these improvements and put them to work. In fact some of them and their families are hungry. Even if it costs $50,000 to renovate the additions so that they can be used for elementary or senior high schools as has been suggested, we are putting bread into the mouths of hungry citizens, and I would vote for them."

Alderman Gann took the floor and sounded the same note in behalf of labor.

McCutcheon Opposes.

Councilman McCutcheon declared "every time we are to be hurried into any movement, we have hungry workmen to feed" in opposing passage of the contracts. "It is not good business to vote a referendum and then vote to spend $750,000 in improvements on the same thing we seek to eliminate," he said. "I am opposed to the paper."

Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth, took the same position, and was supported by Alderman Murphy, Councilman Lyle and others.

Many of those voting for the referendum took that stand on the ground that the people have a right to express themselves on any public matter, and many of those who voted to refer contract recommendations to the board took the position it was bad business to spend money on projects which might be abandoned as a result of the referendum.

Couch Makes Plea.

Mr. Couch made an impassioned plea for passage of the contract recommendations in "behalf of the children of Atlanta who actually need seats and who will face September with schools in such a congested condition that they cannot be cared for except in double and triple sessions."

"We owe it to the children of this city to facilitate construction of school rooms as much as is humanly possible," Mr. Couch said. "I beg council in the interest of peace and harmony and for the good of the children of this city whom we are to protect in this matter to pass these contracts."

Alderman Dobbs took a similar stand, appealing for rapid completion of bond issue projects without further delay in the interest of a bigger Atlanta and administration of the bond money with the greatest possible economy of time.

"There never will be a time when school rooms are more needed than they will be needed next fall," Mr. Dobbs said. "At least I hope there will not. We should by all means, in fairness to the children of the city, leave no stone unturned to facilitate acquisition of additional decent class rooms."

Powell Pleads for Schools.

George Powell, president of the board of education, said when informed of council's action, that any definite announcement as to the board's reaction to the referendum proceedings would be premature, but declared that the junior high schools should be given time for a trial.

"I am disappointed that council did not pass the junior high school projects, but have no criticism to make," he said. "I do feel, however, that the average layman is not well enough versed in educational affairs to vote intelligently on so purely a technical educational matter. We have employed experts to assist us in working out an educational program and I am inclined to follow their advice in such matters. As a member of the board, I should be guided in a large measure in casting my ballot for or against abolition of the junior high school system by the recommendations of the administrative department of the school system. We do need every school room it is possible to get and we need it right now."

Sutton Is Silent.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, declined to make any statement until he has had time to study all phases of council's action.

"Any announcement or policy outline at this time would be premature, I feel, and I therefore, will carefully study the propositions referred to us and to the people by council before taking any stand," Mr. Sutton said.

J. P. Wall, chairman of the city democratic executive committee, declared he would call a meeting of the subcommittee next Tuesday afternoon to consider putting the proposed referendum on the ballot of the primary, which is to be held June 6.

"I feel that members of the subcommittee should have ample time to consider all phases of the referendum before being called together," Mr. Wall said, "and therefore, will defer calling any meeting before next Tuesday.

Moore Seeks More Revenue.

Citizens of Atlanta will be asked to vote additional revenue to operate schools of the city in the city primary to be held June 6, according to announcement Monday afternoon of Councilman Wiley L. Moore, of the seventh ward and chairman of the finance committee of council.

Mr. Moore's plans were partially divulged during discussion of a referendum which council was considering for abolition of the junior high schools of the city, when he made a fight to have the referendum proposal referred to his committee where it could be considered with the finance plan which the committee intends to recommend.

Details of the program could not be obtained Monday night, due to Mr. Moore's absence from his home, but it is understood they are to be worked out in conferences between school administration and school board officials before the next meeting of city council. It was announced that the plan would be offered to council at the meeting to be held April 17.

EVANS CONSPIRED TO KILL, REPORT

Evans "framed" evidence to bring about his imprisonment and he branded the dying statement of Madge Oberholzer, for whose slaying he was convicted, as utterly untrue. The girl's deposition played a large part in the former klan leader's conviction.

"None of the facts leading up to the cause of her death are true," he said. "She did not die from the causes attributed to her demise, but from another cause and the effects of a deadly poison which was administered to her by force at least 15 days after she is alleged to have accompanied me on a trip to Hammond."

Stephenson charged the klan was involved in bootlegging operations and he said that after he resigned from the klan he was approached by "William G. Zembum, or Zambunski, chief counsel for the klan," with a proposition to arrange for the protection of a liquor shipment through the state of Indiana. He said he refused.

SENSATIONAL CASE RECALLED BY CHARGE

Captain William S. Coburn, prominent attorney who represented Emperor William J. Simmons in various suits against the Evans faction in the Ku Klux Klan, was shot and killed on November 5, 1923, by Phillips E. Fox in one of the most sensational killings in Atlanta's history.

Fox, publicity manager for the imperial palace here and editor of "The Nighthawk," official organ of the Evans action, entered Coburn's office, on the eighth floor of the Atlanta Trust company building, and while the attorney was seated at his desk pumped four bullets into his body. Flinging the revolver to the floor, Fox dashed out of the office and down the stairs, but was captured on the seventh floor by an insurance agent, whose attention had been attracted by the screams of two women who were in Coburn's office at the time of the shooting.

Fox, who was a Harvard graduate and a former student at Oxford, England, was subsequently placed on trial. He entered a plea of delusionary insanity, claiming the "voice of God" had commanded him to kill Coburn. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation of mercy, on December 21, 1923. He now is serving a life sentence at the state farm at Milledgeville.

Following the shooting, officials at the imperial klan palace here gave out the following terse statement: "A most deplorable affair. We regret it more than words can express. It must have been a personal matter between the participants. The unfortunate affair was a great and most regrettable surprise for us."

KAPPA ALPHAS HONOR COMMANDER R. E. BYRD

News of a luncheon given in honor of Commander Richard E. Byrd by the Kappa Alpha Southern club, of New York, the alumni chapter of which the famous aviator is a member, was received here Monday by local members of the fraternity. Commander Byrd outlined preparations being made by himself for an aerial expedition to the south pole.

Among those at the gathering were Gordon Gordon, former president of the club, who moved Commander Byrd's election to honorary membership; Dr. J. D. Bissell, W. B. Carlyle, Everett L. DeGolyer, Frank L. Fuller, Dr. Charles H. Herty, Walter P. Holcombe, Wallace Kelly, Herbert Noble, Jr., Dr. L. W. Pearson, R. C. Plater, Dr. William B. Pritchard, William B. Roulstone, John W. MERGER OF GASOLINE FIRMS ENDS PRICE WAR

A sharp rise in gasoline prices Monday marked what appears to be the end of a price war waged by local oil companies with announcement that a merger of several independent companies is contemplated through options held by a New Orleans company and that gasoline Tuesday morning would sell for 22 cents a gallon at practically all stations in Atlanta. The prices formerly in effect were 18 and 20 cents per gallon.

Oil companies who follow the advance in price, according to reports Monday, include the Gulf Refining company, Pan American Southern Oil company, Sinclair Refining company, Texas company, Wofford Oil company, Reed Oil company and the Holcomb Oil company. The independent companies on which options have been secured by H. D. Smith, Jr., vice president of the Liberty Oil company, of New Orleans, are G. S. Bunch, Holcomb Oil company and the Log Cabin Gas and Oil company.

While admitting he had given an option that expires some time in April, Mr. Bunch declared Monday that he would not join in any price movement with other companies. Gasoline at the Bunch stations will remain at 18 cents, he said.

According to reports of Mr. Smith's plans for the merger, he will attempt to consolidate the three groups of stations on which options have been obtained with another large Atlanta independent, using this name for the consolidation. It is believed that the Reed Oil company, which uses the Liberty Oil company products, is the one indicated, although R. N. Reed, president of the local concern, denied on Monday that any negotiations of this nature were pending. The merger is said to involve an investment of approximately $180,000.

The general rise in price of gasoline is in line with similar increases throughout the southeast.

Dunbar Rolls Refrigerator To 5 Points To Square Bet

:: ALEXANDER-SEEWALD SALESMEN WIN OVER BOSS ::

E. V. Dunbar, general manager of the wholesale electric refrigeration department of the Alexander-Seewald company, snapped at Five Points with the G. E. refrigerator he trundled through town Monday to pay off a bet he lost with the retail sales force.

E. V. Dunbar is a thorough-going good sport.

He established that fact Monday to the entire satisfaction of the personnel of the Alexander-Seewald company, where he is general manager of the wholesale electric refrigeration department, and to thousands of Atlantans who saw him roll an apartment model General Electric refrigerator down Peachtree street to Five Points.

Thus did Mr. Dunbar square off the loss of a little bet he made some time ago with Roy Smith, retail manager of the refrigeration department of the Alexander-Seewald company, which is distributor of the widely-popular General Electric automatic refrigerators.

Mr. Smith at that time believed his force of retail salesmen would make a "killing" on G. E. refrigerators during March. He didn't hesitate to say so. While Mr. Dunbar was in thorough sympathy with the aforementioned "killing," he bet Mr. Smith that his men wouldn't sell 50 G. E. units or $25,000 worth of refrigerators during the month just passed. Mr. Smith promptly took him up.

During March the retail salesmen worked like Trojans to win the bet for Mr. Smith. If he should lose it was up to him to push the G. E. model from the Alexander-Seewald company to Five Points and back again, with the sales force accompanying him as a sort of funeral escort. If Mr. Smith won Mr. Dunbar was to do the public pushing all alone.

Monday morning the sales lists were checked, and it was found that Mr. Smith' men had sold—not 50—but 61 G. E. units and had won the bet for their chief handily. So they trundled out the gleaming white apartment model G. E. and called on Mr. Dunbar to carry out his agreement.

He did. All the way to Five Points he trundled the refrigerator with thousands looking on, and then back he pushed by way of Broad street and Peachtree.

Did Mr. Smith and his men sympathize? They did not. Grinning jubilantly, they piled in several automobiles and honked for speed every time the perspiring loser showed a tendency to slow down. And on each of their cars was a sign reading: "We beat the boss. During March we sold 61 General Electric refrigerators while he bet we wouldn't sell 50."

"It was a hot job and a tough one," Mr. Dunbar grinned at Five Points, "but the boys won and it's easy to pay up when they are setting such a fast pace. I wouldn't mind losing a bet like this every day."

MELLON WILL GO BEFORE TAX BODY FOR SMALLER CUT

Washington, April 2.—(United News.)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will go before the senate finance committee tomorrow to present his revised tax reduction plan.

He has recently indicated that tax collections thus far are $5,000,000 under last year and that tax reduction should be held to about $200,000,000.

Last fall he recommended to the house a reduction of $225,000,000, but the house ignored this and passed a bill reducing taxes by nearly $300,000,000. The administration opposed this and leaders in the senate buried the bill in committee until March tax returns are available to throw light on the controversy as to whether they had underestimated future revenues.

There is so much difference of opinion in congress over the tax reduction program that it is uncertain whether these can be adjusted in the two months remaining before adjournment.

Bohn and Ice King

REFRIGERATORS

The City Ice Delivery Company invites you to inspect their exhibit of Ice King—made by Leonard—and Bohn refrigerators.

In this showing you will find everything from the lowest-priced high-grade refrigerator to the very best all porcelain styles made by these two outstanding manufacturers.

An inferior refrigerator is not only a poor investment; it is a menace to the health of your family.

For that reason we are handling only refrigerators of superior construction. But we are pricing them surprisingly low and offering most liberal trade-in prices for your old box and very easy terms.

If the refrigerator you are using is old, or if it is not of proper construction, it is very possible that it will cost you more than the price of a new one if you try to use it through the summer.

MORTGAGE GUARANTEE IN ITS NEW LOCATION

Friends and clients of the Mortgage Guarantee Company of America, widely-known financial house, Monday called to congratulate the company upon its removal from old quarters in the Candler building to a handsome new business location on the ground floor of the Wynne-Claughton building, at Carnegie Way and Ellis street.

The new home of the company was decked with floral tributes sent by friends in the local and national business field, and officials of the concern were on hand throughout the day to welcome all who visited the new quarters. These consist of the corner ground floor apartment, basement vault and part of the second floor of the building.

"With removal of the Mortgage Guarantee Company of America to its new home, the company is four years old," H. C. Williams, president, said. "Four years ago we started in a very modest way, our capital being only $200,000 and our first month's gross business being only $30,000. Today our capital and surplus is $1,200,000 and we are doing $8,000,000 in business yearly. While at first our loans were confined to Atlanta alone, we now are operating in seven states and our bonds have national distribution. We have brought millions of dollars into the south and we feel that we have done an important work in the development of this section."

In addition to Mr. Williams, officers of the Mortgage Guarantee Company of America are Joseph A. McCord, chairman; Lee Hagan and Basil Stockbridge, vice presidents; S. W. Florence, second vice president; Peter F. Clarke, treasurer; Joseph A. McCord, secretary; George M. Elrod, assistant treasurer; Thomas W. Oastler and F. C. Miller, assistant secretaries.

RECORD CANDY CARGO SHIPPED TO SOUTH

According to officials of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., the consumption of candy in the south has more than doubled since 1920; in fact, prior to that time there was practically no movement of candy into the south in carload quantities, according to officials of the Louisville & Nashville railroad Monday.

A shipment of 1,719,500 candy bars, loaded in eight special Baby Ruth refrigerator cars, moved from Chicago last week via the Louisville & Nashville railroad, consigned to Atlanta, Nashville, Memphis, Tenn., Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile, Jacksonville and Winston-Salem. This is said to be the largest consignment of candy ever moved to the south in privately owned refrigerator cars, according to local railroad officials.

EXCAVATION WORK BEGINS ON MOSQUE

With the first steam shovel put into action at the Shrine mosque site, at Peachtree and Kimball streets, early Monday morning, excavators began the work that will move forward with rapid and continued activity until erection of one of the country's most elaborate structures is completed.

During the first day's activity 300 yards of dirt were moved and plans were made to put a second steam shovel to work by Wednesday, J. E. Duncan, who is supervising the excavations for C. A. D. Bayley, general contractors, stated. Approximately 14,000 cubic yards of dirt are to be dug for the mosque foundation. It is estimated that, with normal weather conditions, this work will be accomplished in 30 days, with probably three steam shovels employed in the task.

No indications that impediments would be struck to delay the excavation was noticeable from the first day's work, which proceeded in a smooth and orderly manner, Mr. Duncan remarked. While the excavation work is a large undertaking in itself, the plans are to go ahead with portions of the building while the digging is still in process.

As soon as drawings are delivered for the stores and building sections fronting on Peachtree street, construction work will be started there. This is to be some time during the week, it was stated.

When construction activities get into full swing, probably by the end of 90 days, the contractors will work an average of 500 men on the job.

Temporary structures to be erected on the site in the near future, Mr. Duncan said, will include an office building for the contractors and a tower for hoisting the concrete in constructing the mosque.

CASH PRIZE AWARDS IN ORATORY FINALS

Announcement was made Monday that cash prize awards will be made to winners of the district and state finals in the fifth national oratorical contest being sponsored in Georgia by the Atlanta Constitution.

Awards will be made in Atlanta following the newspaper finals, which will be held here April 27 in a contest participated in by the winners in each of the congressional districts participating.

At that time the winner of first honors in each district final will receive $15 in gold and the finalist in the newspaper finals will be given $100 in gold, it was announced.

In addition to the $100 in gold to the newspaper finalist, prizes of $10 each will be awarded to those winning second and third place in the state finals.

Six districts in Georgia already have decided their contests and it is expected that the remaining district contests will be held during the next week or ten days, thus leaving only the newspaper finals on April 27 to determine which high school student shall represent Georgia in the national semi-finals to be held at Raleigh, N. C., on May 11. The survivor of the national semi-finals will go to Washington where on May 25 the national finals will be held.

The winner of the national finals will participate in the international finals to be held next October after a free tour of Europe, which will be given to each orator participating in the Washington finals May 25.

DAILY SERVICES MARK HOLY WEEK AT ST. PHILIP'S

Daily services will mark observation of holy week, the week preceding Easter Sunday and the last week of Lent, at St. Philip's cathedral.

Communion services will be held at 7:30 o'clock every morning, excepting on Good Friday. Elaborate services planned for Friday will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, bishop of the cathedral, who also will hold communion services on Thursday morning. Canon J. W. Gubbons, who officiated at communion services Monday, will conduct these services today and Wednesday.

Easter Sunday morning Bishop Mikell will celebrate communion at 7:30 o'clock and again at 11 o'clock. He will also preach the sermon.

Sermons on Good Friday will be delivered by Rev. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church. The service for this occasion will last for three hours, beginning at 12 o'clock noon.

BOY SET ON FIRE BY YOUNG SISTER; YOUTH MAY DIE

Seriously burned when his sister struck a match and touched it to his clothing, Joseph Shropshire, 4 years old, of 1098 East North avenue, Monday night was in a dying condition at Grady hospital. The boy was burned about the face and body, and doctors say he may have inhaled some of the flames.

Members of the family said the youth's clothes were ignited by his sister while they were playing. Attracted by the boy's screams, the family reached the boy in time to beat out the flames.

Chloroform Theory Offered in Burglary Of Preacher's Home

Chloroform burglars were believed to have been at work in the home of the Rev. J. H. Fuller, on Pharr road, early Monday morning, according to reports to police. The loss amounted to approximately $100 worth of personal property, including a valuable watch, ring, a razor, clock and other articles.

The chloroform theory was advanced because members of the Fuller family are usually light sleepers, and no one was disturbed during the night, although several members of the family awoke with headaches, it was said. The house was ransacked and burned matches were strown all over the floors.

There was no trace of chloroform found Monday morning, but several windows had been left open by the thief, possibly to dissipate the fumes.

G. M. A. SUMMER CAMP READY TO OPEN SOON

The camp last year was represented by students from more than 20 states and three foreign countries with an enrollment of 200. The camp begins this year June 30.

Mercury To Hit Level of Eighty Degrees Today

The prediction, by C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist of the United States weather bureau, that fair and considerably warmer weather would be the order of things today, came along with the information that March, in practially every respect, had been a normal month.

Temperatures today will reach a level of possibly 80 degrees, Mr. von

Herrmann said, with the mercury Monday ranging from a low mark of 50 degrees to a 75-degree maximum.

Mean temperatures during March were only two-fifths of a degree below normal, while precipitation during the month just ended was only .38 above normal for March.

The highest reading of the month was 83 degrees on March 29, while the lowest was 38 degrees on March 19, Mr. von Herrmann said.

Low record for months of March was registered on March 7, 1899, with 8 degrees, while the highest the mercury has ever registered in March was on March 22, 1907, with a reading of 87 degrees.

POWER COMPANY STOCK INCREASES TO $106 PER SHARE

The price of Georgia Power company $6 preferred stock has been increased from $105 to $106 per share plus accrued dividend effective immediately, it was announced Monday by officials of the company. At the same time, it was stated that because of the large demand for the stock, the maximum number of shares which may be purchased by any individual has been reduced from 100 to 25 shares.

Other terms of purchase will not be affected by the change in price. The stock is on sale both on a cash and partial payment plan, the latter requiring a down payment of $10 per share and further payments of $10 per share per month until paid for. The 25-share limit for any individual is effective as regards both purchase plans.

The stock first was placed on sale July 1 of last year at $97 per share plus accrued dividend, and his risen steadily to its present price. All available stock was sold last November, and additional shares were not placed on the market until February of this year. The stock is offered only to residents of Georgia and is on sale through any employee of the company or through its investment department in the Electric and Gas building.

The stock pays quarterly dividends of $1.50 per share, and is exempt, under existing laws, from state, county and municipal taxes when held by residents of Georgia, and from normal federal income tax.

Companionate Marriage Topic of Debate Tonight

Whether companionate marriage is immoral and conducive to race suicide, or whether it is a happy solution to the sex evils of modern life, is the subject to be threshed out tonight at the city auditorium when Judge Ben B. Lindsey, famous juvenile court jurist of Denver, and Dr. Will H. Houghton, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, stage a public debate on the question, "Shall Companionate Marriage Be Legalized?"

Judge Lindsey will take the affirmative side of the question, presenting the proposal which, after his experiences with thousands of youthful transgressors in the juvenile court, he says is the best solution of the economic and other ills which revolve around the sex life of modern man and woman.

Dr. Houghton, declaring that companionate marriage is immoral and evil throughout, will repeat the vigorous condemnations he has hurled at the idea in the past in verbal barrages from his local pulpit.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, will preside at the debate and also will oversee a secret ballot at the close of the debate, by which the members of the audience will vote on the question. The voting blanks will be furnished all who hear the debate and they will be asked to mark them, one way or the other, without signature, and deposit them in ballot boxes which will be placed at the exits as they leave.

The ballots will be carefully counted and the result announced in Wednesday's papers.

Interest in the debate is high, as indicated by the heavy demand for seats all day Monday at the box offices in Cable Piano company on North Broad street, and Phillips & Crew Piano company, at Peachtree and Ellis. Tickets will remain on sale at these places all day today until 6 o'clock, after which they will be placed on sale at the auditorium box office. The debate will commence promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

THEATER REVIEWS

LILLIAN MORTON SENSATIONAL HIT ON CAPITOL BILL

Real honest-to-goodness big-time vaudeville stepped out on the Capitol theater stage Monday night in the delightfully clever person of Lillian Morton, just about the finest singing comedienne this or any other city ever entertained on a stage, and she was given the biggest hand that has been accorded a variety turn locally in many a month.

If the reporter is able to tell Broadway from Main street, then Miss Morton is a big musical show star who, for some reason, has strayed off down into the provinces for a vacation, or something like that. Certainly Broadway offers no finer entertainment than Miss Morton.

A personable little bundle of pep and fun, she has a routine which ranges from keen little comedy offerings to a couple of "straight" numbers, with both types proving immensely popular with her audience. She is generous with encores, as indeed she has to be, since Monday night's crowd would not be stilled except by "more!"

The balance of the show this week is of good grade, with Jimmie Hodges presenting himself and company in a cut-down and breezy model of the musical comedy "Pretty Baby." Jimmie, of course, is still himself and that is to say right offhand that the show is a big success.

He has an unusally clever line of patter this week, and good "gags" abound in wholesale quantities throughout the show. As to the "pretty baby" part—well, the "babies" are there—so go ahead and see for yourself!

Patsy O'Neill, the blonde little songstress who for the past three weeks has provided Mr. Hodges shows with the song hit of the production, again this week scores in the marvelously colorful "Bluebird" number, presenting both Miss O'Neill and the ensemble in strikingly beautiful costumes.

Billy "Swede" Hall, as a dizzy Swedish maid, provides the bill with a lot of good comedy in his act. The Hostens, acrobats, open the bill.

On the screen this week Laura La-Plante is seen in "Thanks For the Buggy Ride," another fine comedy film presenting Glenn Tryon in support of the blonde star.

Playing the role of a modern Eve, Corrine Griffith scores a big hit at the Howard theater this week in her latest release, "The Garden of Eden."

In portraying the personage of this ancient Biblical maiden, Miss Griffith violates all former traditions of her cinematic career. In the past she has acted the leading parts in films of intense drama and in films that plotted of a serious nature. But in this most recent opus of Miss Griffith's she is depicting in a humorous fashion the twentieth century version of the maiden who made the Garden of Eden famous in the days of yore.

The city of Budapest is the scene of most of the action of the picture. In a very realistic manner the historical old capital of Austria is shown, with its unique buildings, while other scenes of the film were taken at Monte Carlo.

On the stage Mr. Teal continues to wag his baton capably to the strains of the Howard orchestra. Mr. Teal succeeds very aptly in putting over a splendid show imported direct from New York, "Moonlit Waters." Fauntleroy and Van are featured in the added attraction and receive many encores from the large audiences of Monday afternoon and night.

As an added unit the Muse-Howard fashion show is put on with much success. It represents the latest modes and fashions for milady and presents, besides the costly gowns and costumes, a parade of lovely models.

COMEDY PICTURE SCORES SUCCESS AT METROPOLITAN

An old, but tried and true method of keeping one's husband, if one wishes to, is cleverly demonstrated in "If I Were Single," with Vitaphone accompaniment, which opened Monday at the Metropolitan theater on the heels of the sensational Jolson picture.

With Conrad Nagel and May McAvoy, an accomplished comedy team, "If I Were Single" offers entertaining film fare of the highest order. A light and frothy plot, garnished by some excellent comedy situations, produce laughter aplenty.

A handsome husband with the strangely universal custom of husbands—that of the roving eye, allows the aforesaid orb to become concentrated on one lady not his wife, and in the mad scramble and confusion that follows, the lady, even as such ladies are wont, extracts an expensive cigarette lighter from the hubby.

To make it complicated, the lighter was the gift of the wife, and then it develops further the "other woman" is a very close friend of the wife's.

And so the wifie starts stepping out with her music teacher—oh, these music teachers!

On the accompanying Vitaphone presentation program is a one-reel gem, "The Lash," a dramatic subject which is presented with all the speaking and action being given to the audience through Vitaphone just as though it were a one-act play on the stage. "In a Monastery Cellar" and "The Night Court" provide novelty for the bill.

The Met program, as a whole, furnishes entertainment of the kind that never fails to prove popular.

FLORENCE HEDGES TOPS GOOD BILL AT LOEW'S GRAND

Florence Hedges, dainty musical comedy star, with her company of musical comedy artists, heads the new vaudeville bill which opened Monday at Loew's Grand theater and she brings an act to Atlanta that is singularly free from jazz music and acrobatic dancing and therefore is a refreshing novelty.

Miss Hedges has taken some of the best numbers from late musical comedy successes and has woven them into an act which pleases throughout. She has drawn on "The Student Prince," "Rose Marie," "The Vagabond King," and "Blossom Time," among modern operettas and from "The Chocolate Soldier" of the olden days and the result is a highly diverting mixture of light music and song.

The digress from discussion of the vaudeville bill it should be said emphatically that "Quality Street," the Loew feature picture with Marion Davies in the leading role, is a real triumph in the picture line. The whimsical Barrie play has been adapted to the screen and in the adaptation it has lost none of its charm and it provides Miss Davies with a role of innumerable opportunities. Here's a picture that is going to rank around the top of the offerings seen here in recent months.

Back to the vaudeville bill we find Frank Melino, last season comedian with "Yip, Yip, Yaphank," back in an act all his own. He is a hard working funmaker and brings with him his brother, who is a capable straight man and a pretty girl dancer.

Frank Sinclair and company, the company consisting of three attractive girls, appears in a comedy skit with a few musical numbers. It has several funny situations with some bright lines here and there.

The Three Golfers appear in a swiftly moving tumbling and acrobatic act which introduces several novelties in this line. Lydia Harris sings several tropical songs.

BERT LYTELL, FILM LUMINARY, HEADS GOOD GEORGIA BILL

Bert Lytell, popular stage and screen star and a brother of John Lytell, former favorite stock company star here, on his first personal appearance in Atlanta headed a well balanced vaudeville bill and made a decided hit with the Monday matinee crowd at Keith's Georgia theater.

Lytell appeared in "The Valiant," a playlet first produced in New York by the Lambs club for their annual "Lambs Gambol." It since has been used extensively as a road show. The playlet depicts a criminal going to his death without making known his identity, with Lytell taking the leading part.

Another of the acts that won favor was the "Blue Grass Four" in a "Breeze of Harmony." They offered a pleasant combination of instrumental and vocal selections.

A continuous round of laughter was accorded the act entitled "Getting a License," with Charles Forsythe and James Kelly in the leading roles. It was a clever skit.

Leff and Demarest Sisters and company offered a "classy little revue" that was unusual and interesting. The dances were excellent and some of the latest specialty steps were introduced. A toe dance also helped make the revue one of the best of recent weeks.

Alice De Garmo, the circus girl, opened the bill with a series of aerial stunts and a number of daring feats on the flying trapeze.

"Something Always Happens," with Esther Ralston and Neil Hamilton in the leading roles, is the feature picture for the week. It is the well done story of some goings-on in a haunted house.

An overture by the Keith-Albee concert orchestra and a news reel complete the program.

"So This Is Love," at the Rialto, is one of those delightful pictures which linger in the memory long after you have seen the picture. A colorful picture of Greenwich Village, presenting a three-cornered romance in which a Scandinavian delicatessen store drudge, a male dressmaker and a prizefighter figure. Shirley Mason and William Collier, Jr., are co-featured and make an excellent team. Shirley has a somewhat different role from those with which she has previously been associated.

Empire.

Bert Lytell in the star role of the Columbia thriller, "Alias the Lone Wolf," today appears on the screen of the palatial new Empire theater at Georgia avenue and Crew street. The Orchestraphone, new and improved musical synchronization device, provides a magnificent accompaniment for the gripping picture. So splendid are the Orchestraphone results with this particular picture, that the Empire management announced Monday it has issued an invitation to Mr. Lytell, who is appearing at a local vaudeville house, to visit the Empire and see and hear himself on this latest entertainment marvel.

SHELVERTON BIDS LOW ON VIADUCT

Construction company, proposal No. 1, $604,986, propasal No. 2, $669,606; Hardaway & Co., $835,800; Shelverton Construction company, $587,880; Davis Construction company, proposal No. 1, $652,821, proposal No. 2, $684,901; MacDougald Construction company, $630,500; Brooks-Callaway company, $692,690; Lochman Construction company, $711,984.60; Nichols Contracting company, $630,299.

The Bid of J. M. Clayton company for the electrical work was $89,892.

The nine items included in the proposals are as follows: Construction of the Pryor street viaduct; construction of the Central avenue viaduct; raising Hunter street between Whitehall and Central avenue; constructing concrete viaduct on Wall street between Peachtree and Pryor; constructing concrete elevated walkway along the south side of the railroad tracks between Whitehall and Pryor; constructing concrete viaduct on Alabama between Central avenue and Pryor; constructing concrete viaduct between Pryor and Whitehall on Alabama; constructing steel and concrete viaduct on Wall street between Pryor and Central, and installing electric lighting.

On a report from City Attorney James L. Mayson that the resolution directing him to condemn certain strips of land at Ivy and Central avenue and at Decatur street was irregular without an appropriation, and a report from W. T. Buchanan that the price asked by the property owners was too high, council appointed L. P. Skeen as the city's arbitrator in the matter.

Mr. Buchanan reported that John Grant, owner of the property on the southeast corner of Central avenue and Decatur street, wants $75,000 for the necessary land for the viaduct, and that the Williamson estate, on the northwest corner of Ivy and Decatur streets, wants $150,000 for their strip.

City Attorney Mayson said that the property owners will be notified of the appointment of the city's arbitrator, and that it will then be necessary for the city's representative and the property owners to appoint an umpire, unless an agreement on the price can be reached. The two strips of property are needed to round out the approach to the Central avenue viaduct from Ivy street.

ARKANSAS PRAYS AS FORESTS BURN

terday and are believed to have been set purposely. Five warrants charging as many persons with incendiarism have been issued.

Volunteers from Russellville including students of Arkansas Tech have been rushed into the forest. Road crews were pressed into service. More than 1,500 acres of timber in the Ozark reserve have been destroyed, reports said.

In the Ouachita reserve where more than 500 men are laboring to check the flames, all available fighters have been dispatched to fight the new outbreaks.

Exactly a year ago all Arkansas streams were flooding madly following steady torrential rains and the same people who were praying for an end to the disastrous rains, now are praying for rain, said to be the only hope of extinguishing the fires.

Planes Patrol Area.

Two Arkansas national guard planes patrolled the area today flying dangerously low through walls of smoke and as close to the flaming tops of giant pines as possible in an effort to detect new fires or incendiarists who officials say probably are to blame for some of the numerous outbreaks. The region abounds in game and it was pointed out that unscrupulous hunters probably set the fires to drive game to easy kills. The fliers swooping over the forest with trained eyes on the alert are believed to have had a psychological effect.

Approximately 4,000 of the 1,000,000 acres in the reserve have been destroyed with losses exceeding $200,000. Pine timber in the forest has an estimated value of $20,000,000 with value of millions of feet of potential pine timber unestimated. Other species of trees, extremely valuable, are numerous in the reserve.

No Towns Threatened.

Efforts to check the fires by "trenching" were abandoned because of the rocky ground and "back fires," and hand fighting are the only methods used by more than 500 men toiling night and day in the furnace-like forest.

Notes were dropped from planes urging men from nearby towns to help with the tortuous work. Many workers were exhausted and relief crews were needed, reports from the "front" said.

A rolling sea of smoke was visible over sections of six counties from the air. At 4,000 feet fliers reported they were still in smoke. Observation towers in the reserve were useless because of the dense clouds rolling up from the dull red fires.

No town is threatened by the fires but unless checked they may menace scattered farm homes. The area is sparsely settled and rough. Numerous mountains in the reserve resembled volcanoes with smoke pouring from their sides as flames ate their way through the majestic pines that covered the slopes.

Old Spain lives on in romantic Missions.
A city is the product of her past. San Francisco, by birthright, is a city wholeheartedly devoted to sports and play.
Daughter of the Spanish caballeros, her streets first tinkled to fandango and guitar.
Turbulent and boisterous in the Days of Gold, when every miner came stamping in to spend his "dust" with lavish hand, San Francisco was the portal to Adventure. And her eager spirit has never changed. Each new gift of fate—gold and silver from the hills, ships from the seven seas, fire and disaster, economic greatness—she has met with light heart and gay spirit. Artists adore her picturesque hills. Writers worship her romantic haunts—Chinatown, her docks and wharves, her historic Mission, her Latin Quarter. World-wide travelers return to her cosmopolitan hotels, cafes and restaurants again and again.
See San Francisco this summer! Make this city your headquarters, and see California. Golf? Here are courses innumerable, some perched right on the rim of the Golden Gate or the hills of her Bay. Motoring? Thousands of miles of paved roadways, leading into four national parks of which renowned Yosemite is but one; into many a gloriously scenic nook and haunt; into scores of valley and beach communities, where resorts of every kind and price await. Climate? This is America's coolest summer city. And it doesn't rain.

End Fat

The way is now easy and pleasant

Anybody who suffers from excess fat should learn what modern science offers. Don't starve, don't over exercise. Combat the real cause. Supply your system with that which turns food into fuel and energy rather than into fat.

Modern research discovered that way some two decades ago. It was then embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Today the results are seen and told everywhere. Most people are slender. All modern styles are adapted to them. They have supplied their systems with the natural factors which prevent the formation of fat.

Users of Marmola do not attempt abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. They simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. New vivacity, new health comes at the same time.

The methods are not secret. Each box of Marmola contains the formula and the reasons for results. You know what you are taking, and the scientific reasons for the benefits which come.

Start Marmola now. You cannot afford to stay fat. Beauty, health and fitness require normal weight. Watch the results for a month, and they will delight you. Then tell the facts to others. Why wait another day?

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

DIET AND HEALTH

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

DANGERS OF BORIC ACID

Boric, or boracic, acid (the same), and borax are such common household antiseptics that there is need for a warning that if taken internally, or absorbed through the skin or mucous membranes in too great concentration, over too long a period of time, they are poisonous.

Both boric acid and borax have the same foundation — boron — but the boric acid, as its name implies, is an acid, and so contains hydrogen, and borax is an alkali containing sodium, the technical name being sodium borate.

Boric acid is a dangerous food preservative, and its use has long been forbidden for such purposes in the United States, France, Germany, Holland, Italy and Spain, and recently in Great Britain. Milk that has been preserved with boric acid has resulted in serious bowel disorders in babies.

McNally and Rust, in a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical association, report the death of six babies from the accidental giving of boric acid solution for distilled water. Also the death of an adult who mistook boric acid for a saline laxative.

So keep your boric acid and borax solutions for your antiseptics, for they are good antiseptics, but tie a little bell on the bottle so you will know that they are poisonous if taken internally, and keep them out of the reach of children.

Every household should lay in a supply of tiny bells to tie on all bottles and any other receptacles that contain poisons. They will automatically warn the absentminded and the nearsighted of their danger.

Mineral Foods in Tablet Form?

B. writes: "Dear Doctor Lulu: All farmers feed minerals to their hogs. I have found a mineral food in tablet form for people. It sounds good to me. I'm not an agent for it and have no interest whatever in the cash value of it, but if it is what is claimed, I think it is what everyone should eat. These tablets come in two forms: the tablet marked "M" is a builder, and the one marked "K" is an eliminator. I am supposed to take both. The manufacturers claim that they contain all of the minerals of the body. It is not a medicine but a food. I am sending you some of the tablets and want to know if they really contain the minerals needed by the body and if they contain any harmful drug. I do not want any of this letter published in any paper."

Dear B.—which isn't your initial—I'm sorry to disregard your wish about publishing this letter, but as it is not a personal one and as it contains material which is of general interest, I am doing so. Not, however, to extol the value of the product, but to expose the fallacy of getting food minerals in tablet form.

I don't know about the feeding of hogs—the kind you refer to, B, but with the exception of salt (sodium chloride), human animals have to get their minerals in the organic form—that is, as they come in the natural foods, not in the inorganic form as they are found in the earth, etc. Even in the case of secondary anemia, where iron is given, it never has been wholly settled whether it is absorbed or not, and always instructions are given to get plenty of foods containing iron, for when these are taken, the inorganic iron does seem in many cases to be of some aid.

Save your money, B, and use it for good food that contains mineral elements. Taken in tablet or other forms, they may do much harm. It would be just like taking drugs without the supervision of a physician. You'll forgive me for running your letter now that you know the harm such products can do?

I do not analyze any products, B. You would have to take them to a chemical laboratory for that. Certain products are analyzed free of charge by the boards of health and in the laboratory of the American Medical association, if they are of general use and are under suspicion.

I think you had better send for our article on Balanced Diet, B. It requires a self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin.

Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed stamped envelope and two cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin with fully s. a. s. e. must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Interior Decoration Authority Speaks at M. Rich and Brothers

:: CORRECT USE OF COLOR EMPHASIZED ::

BY MAINER LEE TOLER.

The correct use of color was emphasized in the lecture given Monday afternoon by Miss Dorothy Ethel Walsh, national authority on home decoration, before a large assemblage of Atlanta women in the drapery department of M. Rich & Bros. company. Talks on the various phases of home decoration will be given by Miss Walsh each afternoon this week at 3 o'clock on the fourth floor of Rich's. Hundreds of Atlanta homemakers are taking advantage of the advice of this experienced interior decorator, whose articles entitled "Practical Phases of Home Decoration" have appeared in leading magazines and newspapers.

Following her graduation from the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, Miss Walsh was appointed director of the home decoration department of this well-known school. She held this position for two years before entering the commercial field of interior decoration. She has lectured before leading women's clubs in America on this important subject of the home and is now en tour throughout the United States, where she is giving daily lectures, at the leading department stores.

Warm and Cool Colors.

The listeners of Monday afternoon were fascinated by her demonstration of the correct use of warm and cool colors in the decoration of the home. The effects of color upon the moods of members of the household were clearly shown in her demonstration as well as the pleasing combination of blending hues. In the south, where the climate is warmer, Miss Walsh advised the many exquisite shades of blue or the combination of various green tints in the decoration of the family living room, explaining the restful, cool effect upon the entire household produced by these tranquil colors. For a more stimulating effect, she suggested the warmer tones that contain much red or yellow, illustrating their inspiring and cheering results.

Miss Walsh believes that the lovely outdoor colors should be extended into the home, and was emphatic in her statement that the drab era of interior decoration is passed. She prefers the more brilliant shades to those of the pastel class, but, of course, the correct use was the predominant object. "There is no reason why the modern apartment with its small rooms and low ceilings cannot be made just as attractive and liveable at a reasonable price as the spacious home with much expenditure," said Miss Walsh.

Tuesday's Talk.

In Tuesday's talk Miss Walsh will demonstrate how the use of line can change the appearance of a room. She will actually show how the smaller room can be made to appear larger with the proper decoration in draperies, rugs, pictures and arrangement of furniture. Atlanta women interested in the appearance of the interior of their homes should hear this noted authority by taking advantages of the opportunity offered them by M. Rich & Bros. company.

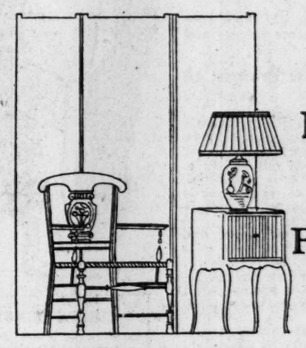
French Provincial Furniture "Feels" With Our Traditions

—Though French Provincial is classed as a rural style . . . because, historically, it is from the "provinces" . . . the type is yet more than merely for the country. It possesses a quiet dignity, a polish, a finish—that makes it fit into any modest home in both country and town . . .

—It is a type that has taken the very deepest root in America . . . since we are a people that love the out-of-doors . . . and like a rural flavor in our homes . . . even though these be apartments in the city. . . .

Chairs Are in Beechwood and Fruit Woods!

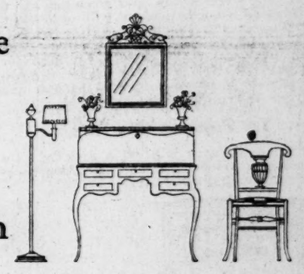


—Of all the interesting pieces of French Provincial furniture—the armoires, the cupboards, the little book tables—none are quite as intriguing as the chairs . . .

—There are the rush-bottom chairs and the chairs with little attached cushions to rest the head, and the overstuffed chairs. There are the chairs with slat backs and the chairs featuring really beautiful designs carved into the back panel (like the chairs we sketched in our Model Rooms).

—RICH'S, FIFTH FLOOR

Lamps Are of Glass and Pottery and French Toile



—All decoration is of the simplest . . . Pitchers and plates of faience richly decorated in colors . . . the crystal glass and pewter bowls of Early America . . . Toile painted in peasant greens and reds . . . and lamps have been created of these . . . in the same manner . . . (Decoratives sketched in our Lamp Shop).

—RICH'S, FOURTH FLOOR

Draperies and Hangings Are Especially Characteristic

—Of course the printed linen known as Toile de Jouy is eminently French . . . and old quilted calico is charming when your rooms boast antiques . . . and linens embroidered in wool give a richer effect . . . and percales checked in peasant reds and blues and yellows are very rural in feeling . . . but the decorative fabric that is enjoying the most tremendous vogue now—is chintz . . . featured in the most charming of flower patterns imaginable, in the sunny colors of the countryside . . .

Now You Can Reduce 2 to 4 Lbs. in a Night

Eat what you please
Wear what you please
Do what you please
Take no risky medicine

Thousand of smart women have found this easy way to take off 2 to 4 pounds once or twice a week. These women take refreshing Fayro baths in the privacy of their own homes.

Fayro is the concentrate of the same natural mineral salts that make effective the waters of twenty-two hot springs of America, England and Continental Europe. For years the spas and hot springs bathing resorts have been the retreat of fair women and well-groomed men.

Excess weight has been removed, skins have been made more lovely, bodies more shapely and minds brighter.

The Hot Springs Are Now Brought to You

Painstaking analyses of the active ingredients of the water from twenty-two of the most famous springs have taught us the secret of their effectiveness. You can now have all these benefits in your own bath. Merely put Fayro into your hot bath. It dissolves rapidly. You will notice and enjoy the pungent fragrance of its balsam oils and clean salts.

Then, Fayro, by opening your pores and stimulating perspiration forces lazy body cells to sweat out surplus fat and bodily poisons. Add Fayro to your bath at night and immediately you will lose from 2 to 4 pounds in an easy, refreshing and absolutely harmless manner.

Your physician will tell you that Fayro is certain to do the work and that it is absolutely harmless.

Fayro will refresh you and help your body throw off worn-out fat and bodily poisons. Your skin will be clearer and smoother. You will sleep better after your Fayro bath and awaken feeling as though you had enjoyed a week's vacation.

Lose Weight Where You Most Want To

Fayro reduces weight generally, but you can also concentrate its effect on abdomen, hips, legs, ankles, chin or any part of the body you may wish.

Results Are Immediate

Weigh yourself before and after your Fayro bath. You will find you have lost from 2 to 4 pounds. And a few nights later when you again add Fayro to your bath, you will once more reduce your weight. Soon you will be the correct weight for your height. No need to deny yourself food you really want. No need for violent exercise. No need for drugs or medicines. Merely a refreshing Fayro bath in the privacy of your own home.

Try Fayro at Our Risk

The price of Fayro is $1.00 a package. Inside each package you get an interesting booklet, "Health and Open Pores."

HERE'S PROOF

Read what Fayro Baths have done for others.

"Three Fayro baths reduced my weight 11 pounds in 8 days. I feel better than I have felt for years."

"I weigh 16 pounds less and feel younger and sleep better. Fayro is wonderful."

"My double chin vanished in the magic of Fayro baths."

"My hips were always too prominent until I commenced Fayro baths. I have lost 12 pounds."

"Thank you for Fayro. I lost 14 pounds in three weeks; feel better and certainly look better."

"Since childhood my thick ankles have always been a source of embarrassment. Fayro baths have reduced them beautifully. Thank you very much."

For obvious reasons, names are not quoted, but every letter published has been authorized and names and addresses will be given on request.

FAYRO

If each healthful bath of Fayro does not reduce your weight from 2 to 4 pounds, we will refund your money without a question. You risk nothing.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Banana Bill.
You think me odd, I plainly see;
But you are just as odd to me.
Banana Bill.

"Who is Banana Bill? Is he a relative of mine?" demanded Bobby Coon of Scrapper the Kingbird.

Scrapper's bright eyes twinkled. "Have you any relatives with wings and feathers?" he asked.

"Of course I haven't," retorted Bobby Coon indignantly. "Is this Banana Bill a bird?"

"He certainly is," replied Scrapper, "and he is some bird!"

"Well, why didn't you say so to begin with?" snapped Bobby Coon crossly. "I'm not interested in birds."

"You would be if you ever saw Banana Bill," replied Scrapper. "Of all the feathered folk I know, and I know a lot of them, there is none more interesting to me than Banana Bill."

"What's his other name?" Bobby asked.

Scrapper chuckled. "I had forgotten," said he, "that I hadn't told you his real name. His real name is Toucan, but he is called Banana Bill. And if you could once see him, you would understand just why he is called Banana Bill the Toucan."

"Who does he look like?" asked Bobby.

Scrapper laughed right out. "He looks like no one but himself," he declared. "I don't know of any one else who looks the least bit like him. Up here in the Green Forest he would look queer, I suppose, but way down there in the jungle, where winter never comes, he somehow seems to fit. The jungle wouldn't be the jungle without Banana Bill around. I love to watch him every chance I get."

"Is he pretty?" demanded Bobby.

Scrapper looked puzzled. He was puzzled. "That depends on what you call pretty," he said slowly. "He has some bright colors, and bright colors are pretty. But he isn't exactly what you would call graceful. In fact, if you didn't see his bright colors, you would probably call him homely."

"Doesn't he ever come up this way?" inquired Bobby.

This time Scrapper shook his head vigorously. "No," said he, "he never leaves the jungle. The jungle is his home and I have heard him say that he couldn't understand how some of the rest of us could leave the jungle to come away up here. When I get down there on the way to that faraway winter home of mine, I never quite feel that I've reached the tropics until I see Banana Bill. When I see him, I know I surely have arrived. Did you ever see a banana, Bobby Coon?"

His real name is Toucan, but he is called Banana Bill.

Bobby shook his head. "No, said he, "I never did. What is a banana?"

"It's one kind of fruit," replied Scrapper promptly. "It grows down there where Banana Bill lives. Farmer Brown's Boy knows what a banana is, for I've seen him eating one."

"How could you see him eating a banana if it doesn't grow up here?" demanded Bobby Coon suspiciously.

"Oh, I suppose it was sent up," explained Scrapper. "I've seen bananas being sent away from the tropics and I suppose they get away up here. Anyway, if you had ever seen a banana, you would know why Banana Bill is called by that name. His bill always reminds me of a banana."

Announcement of appointment of A. O. Ohlhaver as manager of the bond department of the Fulton Industrial

A. O. OHLHAVER.

Securities corporation was made Monday by George H. Rosenbusch, president. Mr. Ohlhaver resigned from the superintendency of agencies of the Crum & Forster organization to accept the new connection and immediately took charge of his new duties.

As manager of the bond department, he will have charge of the sale of a $250,000 issue of Fulton Industrial Securities corporation bonds, which he declares to be one of the most attractive issues ever offered the investing public. The bonds bear interest at 7 per cent and in addition participate in profits of the corporation up to 4 per cent additional.

"The investor," Mr. Ohlhaver said, "is thus assured of 7 per cent return on his money, and under our plan of operation it is extremely likely that he will draw 11 per cent on his investment. In fact, since the organization of the company we have not failed to pay the full participation."

The Fulton Industrial Securities corporation conducts a small loan business throughout the United States, operating under the uniform small loan act founded on recommendations of the Russell Sage Foundation.

Officers of the corporation are George H. Rosenbusch, president; E. L. Wight, vice president, and O. D. White, secretary. The Citizens & Southern National bank of Atlanta is registrar and transfer agent and the Fidelity Trust company of New York co-registrar.

Pat Mell Turns Seaman

:: INSPECTOR TELLS STORY OF UNDOING ::

And Meets With Disaster

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Pat Mell, chief oil inspector, arrived at the capitol an hour late Monday.

Trying to make a sea dog out of landlubber was Pat's undoing—but here's the story.

Out at his home near Marietta Pat has a fish pond. It's about a hundred feet long and fifty feet wide but it looks like Lake Erie to Pat. Gazing out on his vast expanse of water recently Pat decided that it ought to have a boat on it.

Calling on a friend of nautical inclinations Pat closed a deal for a boat and it was delivered. As he was busy entertaining callers and visitors Sunday Pat had no chance to use the boat, so decided to take his first rowing trip early Monday morning before leaving for the capitol.

Heaving the boat onto the bosom of his mighty body of water Pat grabbed an oar and prepared to navigate. Now Pat knows just about as much about navigating a rowboat as he knows about the Einstein theory. He thought he could step out into a frail little rowboat with as much abandon as he could step on the deck of a steamboat and as safely. But he knows better now.

The boat being ready and the paddle in his hand Pat took something like a hop, skip and jump into the boat and shoved off. The craft careened this way, lurched that way and was altogether so much out of balance that Pat tried to right it by swaying back and forth. He swayed one time too many. About the fourth sway the water rushed over the gunwales, the waves on the lee scuppers washed the mizzen deck, Pat fell out over the foc'sle, past the jib booms, abaft the spinnakers without a belaying pin in his hand and plunged into the water. After receiving an icy shock Pat came up sputtering and made for the bank. Soaked with mud and water, chilled to the bone and shivering like a shimmy dancer, Pat ran to the house and built up a fire. Changing to dry clothes he was able to catch the next car for work.

"A fool ought to stick to his own business," was his statement released for publication soon after he arrived at the capitol.

JUGGERNAUT

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Esther Rowe, a young nurse, having accompanied an invalid from the United States to Cannes on the Riviera, is about to return to New York when she sees an advertisement in the paper for a nurse and doctor's assistant and she decides to apply for the job in order to spend a little time in Cannes.

While waiting for an answer to her application to Dr. Sartorius, Esther treats herself to tea at the fashionable Restaurant des Ambassadeurs. She becomes interested in the conversation of a beautiful French woman and her escort, an Englishman, who sit at the next table. On returning to her hotel Esther finds a note from the doctor asking her to report in the morning.

The beautiful French woman of the restaurant comes to see Dr. Sartorius and Esther learns that she is Lady Clifford. A few days later her husband, Sir Charles Clifford, is stricken with typhoid fever and Dr. Sartorius gives up his practice and laboratory work to devote himself exclusively to Sir Charles. Esther is taken on the case as day nurse.

Roger Clifford, Sir Charles' only son, arrives in Cannes. Sir Charles tells his son that he has changed his will to the extent of making him executor and trustee of the whole estate. Roger is attracted to Esther and invites her to dine and dance with him. They go to one of the fashionable restaurants in Cannes.

On returning to the house Roger comes upon his stepmother in the darkened drawing room with Arthur Holliday, who has been paying Lady Clifford some attention. Roger orders Holliday to leave the house.

The next day Sir Charles breaks the news to his wife that he has named his son executor of his estate in his will. Lady Clifford flies into a rage.

Shortly afterward Roger complains of a headache, and his aunt, Miss Clifford, offers him one of her remedies. In trying to open the bottle Roger breaks it and cuts his hand. Esther is called in to bind up the cut and in her haste she mislays the doctor's hypodermic needle, which he has just used on Sir Charles. The doctor is unwarrantably angry with her over this carelessness. Two days later Sir Charles dies. Esther finds the needle, but instead of returning it to the doctor she has it analyzed. Lady Clifford dismisses her, but before she leaves she gets the report from the chemist that the hypodermic needle contained typhoid germs. As she is about to warn Roger she is attacked and taken from the house unconscious. She awakens some time later in Dr. Sartorius laboratory. Sartorius leaves Holliday to guard her while he returns to the Villa Firenza with tetanus germs which he intends to inject into Roger's sore hand. Esther manages to escape from the house through the skylight.

INSTALLMENT LVI.
COLLAPSE.

The first to stir was Roger, who knelt beside the sobbing girl and, putting his arms around her body, tried to lift her a little.

"Esther, you poor little thing, what on earth is this all about? Try and tell me where you've been since you left here?"

He picked her up and carried her to the canape, where very gently he laid her down. Even in that disturbed moment the touch of her damp curls and the faint odor of her skin moved him strangely. She might be demented, but it was not easy for him to forget that she was Esther.

All at once an impossible idea shot across his brain, searing it like a red-hot iron. Could there, after all, be some underlying grain of truth in that wild accusation Esther had uttered a moment ago? At least some deceptive semblance of fact in it? It was nonsense, of course, to consider such a thing, yet—— The expression in the gray eyes altered completely, the look he had seen was gone. Lady Clifford came in with an exclamation of concern.

"Mon Dieu, what is all this? How did that poor creature get here, and in such a state? Why, look, her clothes are soaking! She must have been in the rain for hours! And blood here on her face!"

The old lady whispered an explanation.

With a glance at the canape, Lady Clifford turned toward the doctor.

"What do you think one ought to do, doctor?" she inquired. "She can't stay here, naturally. Don't you think one should try to get her into some really safe place, where she could be properly looked after?"

"She is raving; we must let her be for the moment till she quiets down. I will see what can be done. There is a mental home near Grasse where I believe they would take her. I can telephone and find out. They would keep her under observation until we can get in touch with her people."

Roger was peculiarly upset by the doctor's matter-of-fact reference to the mental home, and on the spot he resolved firmly to defeat any arrangements that might be made for placing the girl where she could be kept "under observation." Yet, what ought one to do? She was clearly in need of medical attention. She seemed now to be delirious, babbling incoherently, repeating in an undertone and in that strange, hoarse voice fragments of words and phrases that in spite of their wildness arrested his attention. Listening closely to her, he thought that all the happenings of the last two months of her life had become interwoven into the fabric of her delusion. Such words as "typhoid," "toxin," "hypodermic," "bandage" recurred again and again; then "culture"—she was back in the doctor's laboratory now, without doubt, watching his experiments.

Suddenly a name caught his ear, he bent closer. What was this she was saying about Holliday? Holliday! How did he come into it? A low, frightened whisper followed, he had to strain his ears to catch it: "She wanted the money now, you know, so she could keep him with her!"

Still keeping one arm beneath her shoulders, he once more looked around and took a cautious survey of the other end of the room. Therese was no longer to be seen, she must have slipped out, but aunt was saying something in an anxious undertone to the doctor, who at that moment had moved nearer to the fireplace. Watching narrowly, Roger noticed the big man put out his hand towards the blazing logs, then saw a small scrap of something flimsy and white—it might have been paper or perhaps a tiny piece of the medical guaze he had been using—flutter into the flames. Again the incredible suspicion crossed his mind; he caught himself wondering if just possibly there was more in this than met the eye.

Esther stirred restlessly, muttering words he could not catch, then turned a little away from him on to her right side. As she did so his gaze fell on her left coat sleeve. There was a spot near the shoulder no bigger than a half crown, where the material was oddly frayed and roughened. He examined it closely, then as gently as possible unfastened the coat and slipped it down from the shoulder. What was this? The heavy crepe de chine blouse underneath, in the spot that corresponded, was punctured with tiny round holes, a constellation, thickly grouped. What did it mean? He laid his finger on the spot, but at the touch she recoiled from him with a shudder that shook her from head to foot.

"No, no, not again!" she cried out in her former accents of horror.

"Esther, darling, it's only me, Roger, I won't hurt you," he whispered softly. "Listen to me, dear. I want to know what these marks are on your arm. Try and tell me. Try and tell me where you have spent these last two days."

She opened her lips and moistened them painfully, then, as he thought she was going to speak, he saw her eyes fix themselves on a spot above his shoulder, while her whole face became contorted with fright. Glancing behind him, he saw that the doctor had quietly come near them again and was standing, a silent, bulky figure, at the foot of the canape.

Filled with annoyance, Roger motioned to him to withdraw from the girl's sight, but already it was too late. With a tremor more violent than those preceding she buried her face in the cushion, then lay completely still, so still that Roger became seriously alarmed.

"Here, will some one fetch some brandy?" he demanded abruptly, looking around. "She's fainted. There's a bottle in the cupboard in my bathroom."

The voice of Chalmers answered quickly from the doorway. "Yes, sir, I'll get it, sir."

Anxiously Roger fell to chafing the girl's cold hands, then became unpleasantly aware that Sartorious was regarding him with a faintly sardonic expression on his sallow face.

"I suppose you have realized what those marks mean?" the doctor said, with a slight movement of his head toward the punctured sleeve.

"Well, what do they mean?" returned Roger aggressively.

"Simply what I ought to have guessed all along—that the unfortunate woman is the victim of a drug habit."

He turned on his heel and walked away, leaving Roger to swallow his rage at what seemed to him an insulting suggestion.

"Dido," he said as his aunt approached with smelling salts in her hand, "stay with her, don't leave her, do what you can. I'll not be gone a minute."

As the old lady took his place, he quickly ran out and along the hall to his room. He strode to the door, then halted on the threshold, completely petrified. Speech deserted him; he could only stare, hardly able to credit what he saw.

Facing him, her back against the wall, was Therese, struggling with every ounce of strength she possessed to escape from Chalmers, who gripped her firmly by the wrists.

Crackers Nose Out Yankees, 10 to 9; Giants Here Today

Locals Pound N. Y. Hurlers For 19 Blows

Lou Gehrig Gets Three Triples and Brock Hits Two Doubles in Slugfest.

BY BEN COTHRAN.

Someone has said of the New York Yankees, champions of the world when it comes to baseball, that when Ruth isn't hitting, then the Yankees as a team aren't hitting. Your correspondent would like to ask the author of that statement to explain yesterday's happening at Spiller field when Ruth went hitless and his teammates connected 15 times off the slants of Messrs. Smith and Pence, hurling for Atlanta.

As the game progressed the Yankees kept getting hits. But what of our valiant Crackers? The Crackers were going the Yankees about two or three better on this hitting proposition and hammered Stan Coveleskie, he of the spitball, and Henry Johnson, a youngster, all over the lot for eight murderous innings to collect 19 hits of all varieties. Oh, yes, the score was 10 to 9, if you must be statistical.

There were some few thousand people on hand to witness the Crackers in their second game with a major league team forming the opposition and there'll probably be a large turnout this afternoon when the New York Giants are played at the Dell, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Beginning.

The Yankees started things off with two runs scored in their half of the first. The Crackers came right back with three in their half of the first. The Yanks jumped ahead the next inning, the Crackers forged ahead in the third, the score was tied for a few innings then our team went ahead again when three runs were scored in the fifth and from then on the boys remained ahead.

But if it hadn't been for a great play pulled off by Gilbert, Mills and Jones in the ninth, then there might have been a different tale to tell. This is what happened and how:

Dickey, sub Yankee catcher, singled. Mike Gazella was sent in to run for him. Durst, hitting for Johnson, doubled, putting Gazella on third. Earl Combs came to bat and slammed one at Walter Gilbert, who proceeded to get Durst in a trap. Durst headed for third and then back to second. Gilbert threw the ball to Mills, covering the keystone. Meantime Combs had rounded first and was legging it for second. Mills ran out with the ball, tagged Combs, then he shot it to third where Johnny Jones tagged Durst sliding into the bag. The play was over almost before it happened, but perfectly executed. Gazella scored while all this was going on. Some will argue that the try should have been made for Gazella. But Gilbert was in a position such that the play which followed was the right one. It cleaned the bases and left two men out where before there had been none.

Executions.

Two more double plays were executed by the Crackers during the game. One of them was started by Billy Rhiel, who made a bare handed stop of Grabowski's screamer, forced out Dugan at second and shot the ball to Poole in time to snag Joe Dugan. This was in the fourth inning.

Billy also started the Cracker scoring with his triple in the first inning that sent Frankie Zoeller across the rubber.

Big Paul Strand and his bat spoke loud and often Monday. Strand appeared at the plate, officially, four times and each time connected for a single. Frankie Zoeller hit safely four times out of six times up. Poole got two doubles and a single out of four trips to the plate. It seems that murderers' row—judging from last year's averages—is beginning to look alive. Several of the boys were hitting lustily yesterday at any rate.

Although Mr. Ruth was forced to content himself with being safe on a fielder's choice in the first inning and grounding out to infield posts in the other three times he transported his massive frame to the plate, his boy friend, Louis Henry Gehrig was far from being inactive. Three times did Mr. Gehrig connect and each time he got a triple. One of them, in the sixth inning, landed away up on the terrace in center field and except for some fast "marathoning" on the part of Max West, the hit would have been good for a homer. Because Gehrig had reached second before the ball ever hit the ground. West was right on the ball and held the big first baseman at third.

Durocher Stars.

Leo Durocher, who was a Cracker shortfielder in 1926, performed at second base for the Yanks in the place of Tony Lazerri, who is in New York nursing an injured side and resting up before the season opens. Durocher fielded as well as ever and was next to Gehrig in hitting with a triple, a double and a single out of four times up.

Bang! Bang! Bang! 3 Triples.

We take great pleasure in introducing to you one Louis Henry Gehrig, better known as "Larrupin' Lou," who spends his summers at first base for the New York Yankees. Mr. Gehrig, who spent his one-day stop-over in Atlanta Monday at Spiller field, as you probably know, demonstrated to the satisfaction of the several thousand fans just why he is drawing a handsome salary every season from the Yanks. In three official trips to the plate, Lou connected for three triples and scored three runs. Not a bad afternoon's work.

Eastern Racing To Start Today

Baltimore, April 2.—(AP)—Turf followers were gathering tonight for the start of the eastern racing season at Bowie tomorrow afternoon with experts predicting fast going that would shatter track records, on the basis of workouts in the last few days.

Bright weather and track in good condition added to their belief that the first day of the meeting would see speed displayed in the opening feature, the inaugural hadicap. Twenty-five entries named for this $5,000 stake, a seven-furlong race for 3-year-olds and up, included Ancilla, winner of the feature last year and a favorite for repeating the victory.

Possibility of clearing up one omnious cloud, the banning of Harry F. Sinclair's horses from Maryland tracks, faded overnight when James Irvin, of Philadelphia, denied today that he had bought the Sinclair interest in the Rancocas stable, and explained his announcement last night was that he had acquired the oil man's stock in several Maryland race tracks.

'Scout.

Clarence Rowland, one-time manager of the Chicago White Sox and an ex-umpire of the American league, will serve this season as a scout for the Cincinnati Reds.

To Play.

Vic Hanson, the great Syracuse university football star, will play second base for the Waterbury club of the Eastern league this season.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS

Coming High.

There's nothing like holding one's services high if one cares to pay a large income tax every spring. At any rate, that is what Big Bill Tilden will probably opine if questioned on the subject.

To say the very least, Big Bill is not backward about asking plenty for his services, according to a story brought back from Augusta recently by Whitner Cary, staff writer for The Constitution. It seems that a representative of a news service called Mr. Tilden over the telephone in Augusta last week and asked him what he would ask to write 700 words for the news service on the new Davis cup team selected in the eliminations at the Georgia city.

There was a moment's hesitation at the other end of the line and then without so much as a tremor in his voice Big Bill answered: "Seven hundred dollars; $1 per word is all I'll ask for that." That was all, just like that. The news service has not yet released his story and it is quite probable that the story will not be released—nor for that matter will the comments of the news service representative who held the conversation with Big Bill.

* * * * *

A Tame Affair.

Bernard Mortimer, manager of Tom Heeney, says (modestly): "My man will knock Tunney's block off. Here's the way to look at it. Everyone knows what Tom can do. He's had nine fights recently and won them all. What has Tunney ever done? He's only got one good fight to his name."

Well, that matter is settled—in so far as Mr. Mortimer is concerned, bah jove. But the fight fans of the United States, than which there are no more gullible in the world, will not agree unanimously with Manager Mortimer.

Nor, does it seem, will the promoters. Mr. Rickard has more than hinted that the Tunney-Heeney match will be held in England, where he can capitalize on the nationality of the challenger. He knows he will have to capitalize on something to lure the customers forth. He knows that the match in the United States would not be another battle of the century from the standpoint of paid admissions. Despite all the arrogant assurances of Mr. Heeney's manager, it doesn't take an expert to foresee a very tame affair when these two boxers meet.

If Heeney had won his last nine fights by knockouts that would be a different story, but he didn't, and the fans in this country will not part with a couple of million iron men to see a couple of athletic dancers in action.

* * * * *

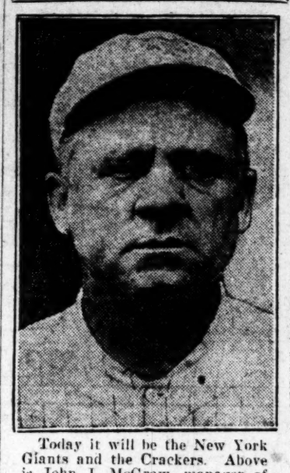
Champs?

If things equal to the same thing are equal to each other, then the Crackers are champions of the world. To be sure today they may deliver that championship unto the charges of one Jawn J. McGraw, but at lesst they have tasted glory for a day.

Here is the logic: If any fighter were to beat Gene Tunney he would be champion of the world. The Yanks are champions of the world in baseball and the Crackers beat them. Of course, the Yanks have been beat on something like nine other times this season thus far, but we'll have to discover some way to rule those games out to make the Crackers champions.

To drop the role of jester and turn philosopher for a moment we might mention that a lot of fans this morning will tell you what a fine team Mr. Spiller possesses this year. A sure pennant contender and all that. Just because they beat the Yankees. Turn back the calendar one week and you would find those same birds panning the Crax because they lost to Macon. Funny, ain't it?

Brings Giants Here Today



Today it will be the New York Giants and the Crackers. Above is John J. McGraw, manager of the Gotham entry in the National league, who will lead his 1928 edition of the Giants into Spiller field today for a game with the Crackers. McGraw will present for the fans here many well-known stars and also some fine ball players.

Suominen Pushed For Foot Race Lead

BY JIM POWERS.

Tucumcari, N. M., April 2.—(United News.)—Arne Suominen is clinging to first place in the great "bunion derby" but Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Okla., is making a spirited challenge for the leadership.

Payne chopped eight minutes from Suominen's advantage today by finishing ahead of the Detroit Finn in the 36-mile run from Newkirk to Tucumcari. They were third and fourth respectively.

Seth Gonzales, the plucky baker's boy from Denver, won the heat in 4 hours, 26 minutes and 30 seconds. Ollie Wanttinen, of New York was second in 4:42:40. Payne required 4:48:20 and Suominen 4:56:30.

Suominen's elapsed time for the 1,072.3 miles from Los Angeles to Tucumcari is 177:48:45 and Payne's is 182:09:22. The $48,500 in prizes will be awarded on the basis of running time between Los Angeles and New York.

The withdrawal of C. L. Jensen, of Glendale, Calif., because of injured feet, left 93 runners still in the marathon.

"We'll have 60 when we get to Chicago," said C. C. Pyle, the promoter of the contest.

Tuesday's run will be 45 miles to Glen Rio.

Darlington Beats Decatur Cinders

Capturing all but two first places, the tracksters of Darlington High defeated Decatur High Monday afternoon at the Emory track, 60-62. The visiting boys displayed a strong and well-balanced team that simply overwhelmed the local boys.

From 1890 until 1895 he was with Troy, N. Y., and was sent to the Hamilton, Ont., team, remaining there until 1901.

Chicago Swimmer Sets New Record

Chicago, April 2.—(AP)—Walter Laufer, of Chicago, swimming unattached, tonight set a new world's record in the 300-yard medley swim to win the national A. A. U. championship in the fast time of 3:39.8. The old mark of 3:45.4 was held by Walter Spence, Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. star, who finished second.

Johnny Weissmuller, of the Illinois Athletic club, retained his 220-yard free-style championship, swimming the distance in 2:10.4. The world's record for the event which he holds is 2:08.6. Laufer was second and Paul Samson, of the I. A. C., was third.

Weissmuller won easily, 20 feet ahead of Laufer.

COACH YOST EXPLAINS PHILOSOPHY OF SPORTS

:: SEES ATHLETICS SAVING CIVILIZATION ::

BY DICK HAWKINS.

"Some of these intellectuals who are against everything athletic in our university school system believe that if you take athletics away from the students they will all grab a crowbar and canthook and tear down the library door just to get in and study, but they're all wet."

In this droll statement Coach Fielding H. ("Hurry Up") Yost, of the University of Michigan, brought his message of athletics and man-building to alumni of the university in Atlanta Monday night.

The occasion was a dinner in honor of Director Yost and, unlike most guests of honor, "Hurry Up" Yost gave the party. This doesn't mean that he bought the excellent food or invited the guests, but he made all the guests forget the food in listening to his informal address.

Philosopher.

Coach Yost is a philosopher. For 31 years he has coached and directed athletic teams at the University of Michigan and now he is just beginning—according to his own belief—to see the fulfillment of his dreams. Coach Yost has directed athletics at Michigan while that university was setting a competitive sports record almost unrivalled in the nation but that is not the story that makes his deep-lined face break into smiles with the telling. He smiles when he tells versity of Michigan take part in intra- you that 6,000 students at the Unimural sports and 1,300 more participate in freshman and varsity games.

And therein lies his whole philosophy. The philosophy poured out in his talk to the alumni of Michigan and other universities at the Athletic club Monday night.

From the time he was introduced by President E. J. Hyde of the Michigan club, until the singing of the "Yellow and Blue" ended the program Coach Yost told his philosophy of athletics and he told it well.

"From the beginning of time," he said, "civilizations have thrived until soft cushions and push buttons have sapped the physical life of that civilization, then the fall has come. This civilization will not go the way of those others because the world in general is beginning to understand that without the physical foundation that will crumble. Systematic organization of recreation is saving a fast civilization and it is to that end that the University of Michigan is completing a plant worth $5,000,000 for the sole purpose of furnishing athletic facilities for every man and woman at the university.

Qualified Speaker.

Probably no man in the nation is better qualified to speak of sportsmanship than is Coach Yost, of Michigan, and his address Monday night stressed this quality to the greatest possible degree. Coach Yost is not the drivelling sentimentalist in his philosophy. He applies his rules of the game to business as well as sports. "It's not what you know but what you do with what you know that counts," he said, in paraphrasing a famous axiom. "You may know all the plays in the world but you can't win a football game with them unless you have the human equation to balance the knowledge."

Coach Yost praised the sportsmanship of universities and colleges in this latter day of athletics. "Sportsmanship is never founded on hate," he declared, and this was borne out by Coach W. A. Alexander, who preceded Coach Yost on the program and expressed the wish that Georgia Tech could meet the University of Michigan on the athletic field in the near future.

Stribling Kayoes Foe in 2nd Round

Sarasota, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—Young Stribling knocked out Marshall Blackstock, Birmingham heavy, 20 seconds after the start of the second round in a scheduled 10-rounder here tonight, the feature on the local legion fight program. A right to the jaw finished Blackstock, who seemed in poor shape. A crowd of 2,000 saw the scrap.

T. Billiards Will Arrive Here Today

Attaway's Foe in Friday Bout Will Start Training Immediately.

Mr. T. Billiards, a boxing gentleman who will meet Stiles Attaway, pride and joy of Gainesville, Ga., at the auditorium Friday night in the main 12-round event of a card promoted by George Crowley, will arrive today and wind up his training for Friday's bout. At least, that's what Mr. James Mayson, who is match-making for Crowley, announced today.

This bout is one of the best that has been offered Atlanta fans in a great while, and a perusal of the card inclines one to rather agree with him.

Good Prelims.

Backing it up will be a bout between Casey Jones and Tommy Oglesby. The two are local products and fought here recently, putting up a great scrap. Jones is a cool, calculating sort of a fellow and picks his way smoothly along, while looking for an opening. He has a punch that usually hurts when it lands. Oglesby is a slam-bang fighter, tearing in to give and take punches. He is tough and it takes a lot of punching to knock him down.

Joe Knight, of Cairo, Ga., who hasn't been fighting any great long while, will appear on the bill. The youngster came up not long ago to learn what he could about fighting. He has appeared here several times and people have been impressed with his showing. He seems to be a comer and should put up a good scrap next Friday night.

The card follows:

Tommy Billiards (Cincinnati) vs. Stiles Attaway (Gainesville), 12 rounds, main bout.

Casey Jones (Atlanta) vs. Tommy Oglesby (Atlanta), eight rounds.

Joe Knight (Cairo, Ga.) vs. John Curtis (Cedartown), six rounds.

Jack Mullen (Atlanta) vs. Homer Reid (Atlanta), six rounds.

Morris Warsaw vs. Battling Maddox, four rounds.

Jimmy Pruitt vs. Young Trowbridge, four rounds.

National Cage Tournament Starts Today

Outstanding Teams in Nation Fear "Wonder Five" in Annual Meet.

Chicago, April 2.—(AP)—Forty high school basketball teams from 37 states today took their last shot at the basket in their final workouts at Bartlett gym before the opening of the world series of prep school basketball at the University of Chicago, tomorrow.

Thirty state champions will vie with ten runners-up and sectional titleholders for the national title which will be determined Saturday night when the two survivors meet in the final game.

The eastern states with the strongest entry list in the ten years of the tournament will make a bid for their second national title. Fitchburg, Mass., won the tournament in 1926, Naugatuck, Conn., winner of the Atlantic seaboard tournament in which 52 teams were entered, is slated to go far into the elimination as is Bristol, winner of the Connecticut state tournament.

Vienna Favorite.

Vienna, Ga., with a team that has won the state and Cotton States championships two consecutive years, is competing as one of the strong favorites. Vienna was eliminated last year by Morton High, of Cicero, champions, in the quarter finals by 1 point.

Austin, Texas; Moorehead, Minn., and Winfield, Kans., champions of their respective states, are entering the meet with unusually strong offensive records, the former having scored more than 1,400 points during the present season. Winfield is competing with the same team that was eliminated by Vienna last year.

Canton, Illinois state champions, and Wheeling, titleholders of West Virginia, will meet in the opening game at 10 a. m. From then on there will be a game every hour with the losers of the first round meeting in a consolation tournament.

Carr Creek, Ky., the team of typical mountaineers from a Hamlet of 200 people, will clash with the colorful five from the United States Indian school, of Albuquerque, N. M., at 5 p. m., in the feature game of the first day's play.

Heeney Tickled Over Coming Fight

Paris, April 2.—(AP)—Tom Heeney, the brawny New Zealander, who is to meet Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world some day, is convinced that his chances are better than even to win. "Sure, I'll fight him," exclaimed Heeney on being informed he had been picked as Tunney's opponent. "And he and everyone else will know there has been a fight going on.

"I have always given American fight fans the best there's in me," continued Heeney. "They can't call me a horizonta fighter. I won't be bombastic and say that I will knock Tunney for a goal, but anyone, after 15 Tunney-Heeney rounds, will be convinced he has seen a real fight."

Heeney experienced extreme difficulties with the first hard-boiled shirt he ever wore as he was dressing for dinner; it was several sizes too small and he tore it halfway down the back.

"This is worse than fighting Tunney," Tom volunteered. "Give me back the old buttoned-up front."

TildenAgainBows To Younger Star

Mexico City, April 2.—(United News.)—The defeat of William Tilden by John Hennessey featured the practice session of the United States Davis cup team at the Deportivo club here today.

The first two singles matches in the opening American zone match between the United States and Mexico will be played here Friday.

Hennessey and Tilden probably will represent the United States.

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

A Friend Returns

I have felt the north wind ripping through the snows,
I heard the west wind crashing as its blows,
I heard the west wind crashing as its blows,
I have heard the east wind from the water zone,
Now I feel the south wind coming to its own.

Built of blossom-scented breath, drifting down the world,
Loafing through the wild plum where winter flags are furled;
Calling on the long iron, headed for the pin,
Singing of the tieing run as it hurtles in.

Bringing back the wild roar from the raving mob,
Leading us to Bobby Jones, Tilden, Ruth and Cobb,
Cleaning out the cobwebs that clog the fagging brain,
Where the sand is flying in the bunkers out the plain.

Sing to me of base hits, white against the blue,
Sing to me of cross court, with a rally due;
Sing to me of long irons, where the bunkers bar,
Sing to me of stout putts leading on to par.

Causing a Slump.

One of the fan flock desires to know just what the elements are that make up a batting slump such as Lou Gehrig encountered some days ago, where he stepped through five or six games without getting a base hit.

A slump usually comes from staleness and tired nerves. Staleness is one of the greatest little slumpmakers ever known. It may have been that Gehrig set too fast a pace at the start. The chances are he may have dropped momentarily into some temporary batting fault, which in turn led to anxiety and worry and over-trying.

When a good hitter goes a day or two without getting in a blow he begins to worry. He also begins to try harder, to grip the bat with a tighter grip and often to start his body too quickly. It is a hard job to keep relaxed when one isn't hitting, and this lack of relaxed swinging is a big part of the trouble.

A batting slump can begin with a physical fault and soon lead to a mental kink that may bring about greater damage than the first.

Handling Slumps.

Ty Cobb has nearly always had some veteran on the bench watch his hitting when any lapse came on. "It is simple enough," Cobb says, "to drift unconsciously into certain minor mistakes—such as rushing the hands too quickly—changing the position of the feet at the plate—hitting up or down at the ball rather than hit in a level plane—shift the body in too far ahead of the hands—swinging too quickly—any of these and others, which a smart fellow on the bench can see without wasting much time. Most of these faults are unknown to the player. One may start standing too close to the plate without knowing that he is changing from the old way. Or he may suddenly begin standing too far back. Or he may lose the knack of getting his weight back of the punch. I like to have someone who can tell me what is wrong before the fault turns into a habit. A fault isn't hard to correct. A habit is. And above everything else, I try not to worry about it or keep it on my mind, although this isn't as easy as it might seem to be. A ball player who isn't hitting can't thing about anything else until the slump is over. And this is one reason why slumps so often keep up much longer than they should."

Another Case.

"I reme ber one ball player last season," Max Carey said, "who was hitting over .350 for several weeks. Then he suddenly fell away to a .190 clip, and he couldn't understand what had happened. He had unconsciously changed his batting style just enough to break up his hitting. One or two of us tried to show him where he had changed, but he wouldn't believe it. He insisted that he was still swinging in the same way, but anyone who had studied his swing could see the difference. There are times, too, when a batting slump comes because rival pitchers have suddenly discovered a player's weakness. When this happens the slump comes in a hurry."

Today's Golf Menu.

Staying down to the shot is one element of th golf swing which few golfers consider with anything more than a passing thought. You will see one golfer address the ball with at least a partial crouch, and then lift the shoulders and body as he starts the back swing. You will see another stay put until just before he hits the ball, when the body is drawn up through the lifting action of hands and arms. 'Stay where you are" isn't bad advice. On the contrary, it is the soundest sort of advice. It is hard enough to hit truly when the swing is kept in a settled or constant plane. When one starts to bobbing up or down in the course of the shot there is almost no chance to keep the club head traveling in the right arc. One fault will lead to dipping the right shoulder, the other will lead to lifting it. The body turns from left to right, but not up and down. After one has taken a comfortable stance, with a normal crouch, there should be no change in a vertical way from this position.

EMORY SEASON OPENS.

Opening the baseball season at Emory university, the Liberal Arts team proved itself a strong contender for the championship by downing the Bus Ad team, 8-2. In the afternoon, the Lawyers, one of the favorites, had no trouble disposing of the Theologs, 19-7.

The Liberal Arts boys played steady ball behind the brilliant pitching of Stockman and showed the best team work of the four teams. Stockman's pitching was remarkable for the first game, no less than 17 of the Bus Ads being struck out, while they were getting only four hits.

The winners nicked Petersen for 14 safeties. Of these two were triples and several were doubles. Wilder led the attack with two doubles and a single out of five attempts.

The evening game was a farce, the Lawyers taking a four-run lead in the first inning and increasing it most every inning. The Teologs were unable to get to Jones pitching and scored most of their runs after Nutty Campbell had taken his place.

The Lawyers coupled the wildness of the Theolog pitcher with their errors to score most of their runs. The first Theolog run was scored when Gardner stole home on the amazed Lawyer catcher.

More leagues will be organized as fast as teams of equal strength apply. Those wishing to enter may secure more information from Trammell Scott, 66 North Broad street, before next Monday's meeting.

Speed Trials May Be Made On Thursday

White Expects To Have Car in Shape Today for Record Run.

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 2.—(AP) Installation of a reverse mechanism on the huge 36-cylinder Triplex racer of J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, with which he expects to set a new world's speed record, was nearing completion tonight, and if beach conditions are favorable, it may be given a test Thursday.

White said he probably would complete installation of the reverse gear some time tomorrow, and after that beach conditions alone would determine when he would be able to make an effort to shatter the present record of 206.95 miles an hour, established here on February 19 by Captain Malcolm Campbell, of England, in his Campbell-Napier Blue Bird.

Ray Keech, Philadelphia race track driver, who will pilot the giant iron steed on its record-breaking attempt, helped White work on the car today and declared that he was confident he could break the present record when beach conditions become favorable. He said the beach was worse today than yesterday, but expressed hope that he would be able to start his run within the next few days.

Anxious.

White and Keech both appeared anxious for an improved beach, following the report here that Frank Lockhart, nationally known race track driver of Indianapolis, would come here about April 8, in a second effort to break the record, in his tiny little Stutz Blackhawk.

Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, who attempted to break the world's record for four-cylinder cars last February, is also said to be planning to return here with his Whippet, when Lockhart makes his run. Shaw in his first attempt was forced to drive his Whippet into the ocean, when it caught fire.

Unless the beach improves before Lockhart and Shaw arrive, indications were that another automobile classic, similar to the regular annual race in which Lockhart and Captain Campbell participated last February, would be staged with three drivers out to set new records.

Purchase Denied Of Sinclair Nags

Philadelphia, April 8.—(AP)—In denying today that he had purchased the horses owned by Harry F. Sinclair, whose entries have been barred from the Maryland tracks, James Irvin, republican, ward leader and contractor of this city, explained that he meant he had taken title to Sinclair's stock in several Maryland race tracks.

Last night Irvin admitted that he had purchased the oil man's stock and this was interpreted in several published reports that he meant Sinclair's horses in his Rancocas stables near Jobstown, N. J.

Irvin said that he was associated in the purchase with another Philadelphian, whose name he would not reveal. Irvin also declined to name the amount of stock taken over from the oil man.

He said the purchase of the Sinclair stock was not to be taken as an indication that the oil man was planning the sale of his stables, as the Rancocas horses may still race on all tracks except those in Maryland.

Murdock Stars As Bulldogs BeatKentucky

Georgia Holds Wildcats While Mates Win 9 to 0 in First Game.

BY BOB SHERROD.

Athens, Ga., April 2.—Lefty Murdock, Georgia's sensational sophomore southpaw, let the University of Kentucky baseball team down with five hits and shut them out here today in the first of a two-game series. The score was 9 to 0. No Kentucky batter got farther than second base and only two of them accomplished that. Murdock did not issue a base on balls and no errors were committed by his teammates.

In the meantime the Kentucky relief pitcher, Rhodes, struck out six of the seven fist batters to face him. Only one run was scored on him during his four innings of service. Wert, who started on the mound for the Wildcats, had lots of trouble in the second inning, when seven runs were scored by the Bulldogs. H. F. Johnson, Georgia third sacker, hit a home run with the bases full in this frame.

Homer Cleans Sacks.

To begin the last half of the second, Shiver walked. Nash walked. Rothstein went out. Jacobson singled, scoring Shiver and sending Nash to third. Keating singled, scoring Nash and sending Jacobson to third. Murdock waled, filling the bases. Chaffin hit a long sacrifice fly and Jacobson came home. Freeman walked. Then Johnson hit a long one to left field, which was good for four bases, scoring four runs. Shiver was thrown out by the pitcher.

The Bulldogs began on Wert again in the fifth. Johnson singled and stole second. Shiver walked. Nash singled and scored Johnson. Rhodes was then sent in and struck out the first two men while the third went out on an easy roller. Rhodes struck out three batters in the sixth.

However, the Georgians scored one in the next inning when Rothstein got a fluke double, Jacobson walked, and Rothstein came home when Gil kicked Keating's grounder.

Goodwin had a perfect day at bat for Kentucky. The two teams play again Tuesday.

'Barney' Will Face Batters This Year, Says Mrs. Johnson

Washington, April 2.—(United News.)—Walter Johnson will pitch this year—his twenty-second in baseball—despite his present illness, for which he is taking treatment at Emergency hospital here, his wife, Mrs. Hazel Johnson, said today.

Johnson, who was brought to Washington from Jacksonville, Fla., where he took part in spring training of the Newark International league club, of which he is now manager, is convalescing from the after-effects of influenza.

He is on the mend, Mrs. Johnson said, and his temperature has been normal for the past three days.

"All he needs now is rest," she said. "Walter is a sick man, of course, but I notice a marked improvement since we reached Washington. And I assure you"—Mrs. Johnson was emphatic on this point—"that Walter doesn't look nearly as bad as newspaper photographs indicate. He's thin, of course, and it shows particularly in his face, but his face was never very full.

"He laughed when he saw those pictures. With time on his hands now he reads the papers; when they were publishing glowing accounts of his pitching I had all I could do to get him to read them."

GENE TUNNEY STARTS WORK FOR NEXT BOUT

Miami Beach, Fla., April 2.—(United News.) — Gene Tunney went through ten rounds of light practice today beginning his training for his fight with Tom Heeney next July.

The champion went three rounds with the rope, punched the light bag three rounds, took three with the heavy bag and shadow boxed a round.

Tunney perspired freely during the workout but breathed easily. He had turned a berry brown from his sunbaths on the beach and swimming.

Lou Fink, trainer, was optimistic about the champion's condition.

"Tunney can be ready for a fight within three weeks," Fink said. "He is in excellent shape and his life on the beach and in the surf has kept him fit."

Fink said Tunney was within seven pounds of his fighting weight.

New York, April 2.—(AP)—The cotton market was higher today on moderate demand, influenced by complaints of dry weather in the southwest and expectations of a bullish boll weevil report from Washington within the next few days. July contracts sold up to 19.33 or 25 points net higher, and closed at 19.31, the general market closing very steady, at net advances of 22 to 29 points.

The opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points, active months showing net losses of about 4 to 10 points in early trading under liquidation, together with local and southern selling. This was probably promoted by a favorable view of over Sunday weather conditions in eastern and central sections of the belt, but the relatively steady cables brought in some buying at the decline and prices turned steadier.

Market Reacts.

After selling about 16 to 18 points net higher, the market reacted several points under realizing with a renewal of local and southern selling, but offerings were light and prices firmed up again during the afternoon. The highest levels of the day were reached in the late trading, when May sold at 19.45 and July at 19.03. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best.

Nothing definite were learned as to the probable date for the issuance of the expected government report on boll weevil, but the impression that it was likely to be published within the next few days, and that it might show a heavy survival, was considered a factor on the advance. The trade also seemed to be paying a little more attention to the reports of dry weather in the southwest, although the generally clear weather shown in the eastern and central belts was considered favorable.

Business Is Quiet.

Business was quiet during the greater part of the day, except for a spurt of liquidation at the opening, and a flurry of covering or trade buying toward the close.

Private cables reported that hedging and Bombay selling in Liverpool had been taken by trade calling and local buying on the strength of Egyptian, also that the cloth demand for India was well sustained and that sales of yarns were equal to production. The futures market for Egyptian cotton at Alexandria was 24 to 90 higher.

Exports today 55,798, making 5,928,900 so far this season. Port receipts 10,061. U. S. port stocks 1,703,202.

MARKET DECLINES BUT RECOVERS.

New Orleans, April 2.—(AP)—After declining 8 to 10 points in early trading the cotton market rallied later today and was on the upgrade for practically the remainder of the session, Buying promoted by fears of a return of unfavorable weather, a rumor that the first official boll weevil emergence repo. would be issued tomorrow, and an opinion by a prominent New York authority that the recent heavy advance in stocks would in flate commodities, forced May contracts up from 18.81 to 19.17, 36 points up from the lows and 26 points over Saturday's close. The option closed at 19.15, with the general market steady at net advance of 24 to 26 points.

Although Liverpool cables were favorable first trades here showed losses of 3 to 6 points and the market continued to ease in early trading under selling induced by the favorable weather over the week-end. July traded off to 18.62 and October 18.31, 8 to 9 points net down.

The market strengthened later on prospects for the return of unsettled and colder weather and the probable inflation of commodities as an aftermath of the recent stock advance. July advanced to 18.88 and October 18.56, or 17 points over Saturday's close.

Following a moderate reaction near noon on realizing, the market started on the upgrade due to the boll weevil report rumor and in the later trading July reached 18.97 and October 18.67, 35 to 36 points above the lows. The close was 1 to 2 points off from the best.

Exports for the day 56,563 bales.

PRICES OF GRAIN UNABLE TO HOLD

Chicago, April 2.—(AP)—Unofficial wheat crop estimates today, construed at first as bullish, presented other aspects when examined closer, and price bulges failed to hold. An outstanding feature was that although reports indicated 20 per cent abandonment of United States seeded winter wheat acreage, this season, an extraordinary big share, the amount left would still be somewhat larger than was harvested last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 1-2 cent decline, with corn 1 3-8 cents to 1 1-4 cents down, oats 1-8 cent off to 1-8 cent up and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to an equal advance.

Notwithstanding that throughout most of the day wheat values showed a pronounced upward trend, the finish was at virtually the day's bottom level. Heavy selling to realize profits for holders had much to do with the reactions from price bulges. On the other hand, purchasers, especially in the earlier dealings, were influenced by the fact that monthly private crop reports today showed an average of 73.9 as the present conditions of wheat compared with 86 last December. The reports also suggested a probable total yield of 44,000,000 bushels less than at this time last year.

Corn prices became heavy owing in the main to free selling of a local character. Buying power proved to be insufficient to absorb the offerings. Nothing was heard of export business, and considerable corn is coming here from other markets. Prospects of enlarged acreage of oats tended to make oats values easy.

In the provision pit, weakness of corn was a counterbalance for higher quotations on hogs.

New York, April 2.—The cottonseed oil market was moderately active and irregular today, closing 10 points lower to 1 point higher. The trade was mixed, refiners absorbing commission house liquidation of May and selling later months. Locals were on both sides. November contracts were relatively steady in sympathy with the advance in cotton. Crude oil was easier. Sales 12,100 barrels. Prime crude 8.50; prime summer yellow spot 9.80. April 9.80; May 9.96; July 10.26; September 10.55; October 10.56.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

New York, April 2.—Attempts to gloss over Saturday's selling as simply week-end realizing were not particularly successful today. The 58-minute late tape gave traders something to think about over the week-end and many of them came back to work with an idea of cutting down commitments. As a result there were selling orders in many issues at the opening. The initial weakness was followed by some bidding up of stocks like General Asphalt, Atlantic Refining, Wright Aero that did not reflect on the leaders. Even running Radio from 178 to above 195 for a new high failed to stimulate bullish enthusiasm. For a change trading slackened enough to bring the tape on time. When call money went to 5½ per cent the market started to weaken and the selling gained momentum right to the close. The tape fell 15 minutes behind at 3 o'clock.

There is little sense in discussing the action of prospects of individual stocks and thus diverting attention from the main point of keeping accounts in a conservative shape. The past suggests a real break may be delayed a week or so of such gigantic proportions as the current market.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, April 2.—Today's market opened irregularly under the influence of the wave of selling and profit taking at the close of last week. Persistence of the call money rate at 5 per cent later rising to 5½ per cent on further withdrawing of loans by banks, together with a further rise in the bankers' acceptance rate, were widely taken to indicate the federal reserve at last was asserting its control over money rates, and therefore, over the stock market. The selling, while abundant, was well taken and while declining quotations were general except for Radio and General Motors, the market did not break.

In view of the fact that the market has been built up to its present price level and activity largely on the basis of cheap and abundant money, a reversal of the money situation leading toward higher rates would undoubtedly seriously affect the market.

At the same time improving reports from the railroads, and better feeling in trade summaries, indicate that there is a healthy foundation for a further advance when a proper readjustment of prices has been accomplished.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, April 2.—Further strength in call money rates with call money reaching 5½ per cent in the early afternoon brought in a great deal of selling throughout the market and prices were lower at the close with one or two exceptions. It must be admitted, however, that there was no sign of disruption at any time, a good demand existing at all times for leading stocks. However the market has been so active and strong in the past few weeks that despite call money rates, a reaction is not surprising. In fact we think the market should react further and for the time being recommended reduction of long commitments on strength.

International Paper was one of the strong stocks today, selling at 79½. Houston Oil was also in big demand with a 10 point gain but elsewhere recent leaders such as General Motors, and others, were down considerably.

Cotton Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

New York, April 2.—Cotton ruled somewhat lower in early trading due to generally favorable weather inland over the week-end, except for freezing Sunday in interior of North Carolina and frost locally in South Carolina and Georgia. There was no rain except light showers this morning in North Carolina.

But the weather outlook for the near future was less favorable, exports from the United States promised large for the day, crop accounts from early producing districts of southwest Texas were unfavorable and much uneasiness was entertained as regards possibility of the boll weevil emergence government report, probably due shortly, being bullish. Offerings were light, shorts covered and there was some fresh buying, market advanced sharply later in the day.

Liverpool cabled: "Trade called and locals bought on account strength of Egyptian." Manchester reported: "Cloth demand from India well sustained. Sales of yarns equal production."

Indications are for increasing cloudiness in nearly all sections of the cotton region, perhaps showers especially in the eastern belt where not wanted. There are no indications for rain in west Texas, where moisture is needed.

Exports today 56,000 bales, against 23,000; since Friday 84,000, against 73,000. Since August 1, 5,760,000, against 8,741,000.

New York advised: "Worth street reports curtailment cotton goods has reached the point where stocks have ceased to accumulate and some goods scarce for quick delivery."

Certificated stocks at southern ports available for delivery on New Orleans and Chicago contracts are very light. The certificated stock in New York continues to decrease and reserves in the interior are limited.

Any demand of consequence for spots, unfavorable weather developments or a bullish weevil survival would likely make for a higher market. Sales of fertilizer to close of March, however, report on which is due shortly, perhaps in a day or two, are apt to be rather full.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, April 2.—Despite better Liverpool cables our market was down at the opening. Trade buying around 19 cents for July brought a sharp recovery and general short covering, the market holding steady around 20 Saturday's closing figures the greater part of the day. In the afternoon reports from southwest Texas showing much replanting necessary on account of the recent frost brought further buying, with contracts scarce and an advance of 20 points.

Closing prices were at the high for the day. With better goods market and spots holding firm there are few offered and when buying develops, and we continue to advise purchases until there is some certainty that the crop is off to a good start.

Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: May 10.87; July 10.27.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, April 2.—As mentioned in our market letter Saturday last week's weather was not a market factor but this week it may be, so far it has not been, for it was good over the week-end and the outlook for cloudy weather in Texas and Oklahoma is hopeful, but these features were without important influence.

On the contrary, the trade is looking forward to publication of the boll weevil emergence report, which is expected Tuesday, but there is no certainty as to when it will be issued. Bullish figures are expected. Aside from this the Liverpool trade is reported as favorable to price advances.

Reports in the local cloth market are to the effect that mills are now selling to such an extent that there is no accumulation of goods. Certainly today there was no pressure against prices and only in a few instances did any special amount of cotton come out, on the contrary there was a covering movement which carried prices up and caused the market to close at the day's highest.

Scarcity of offerings at this season of the year is natural and with the certain knowledge that this year's crop must be of an important size, if prices are to be held down probably explains the ease with which quotations were marked up today.

July Liverpool due 10.26.

TENNER & BEANE.

New York, April 2.—Today's cotton market developed a rising tendency and sold over a dollar a bale higher.

Good weather over Sunday gave the market its poor start but reports of extensive damage to the early planted cotton in the southwest, of inability to replant in that section, expectation of the weevil report any day and better dry goods news from domestic and foreign markets combined to stimulate buying later and to cause a fair-sized rally.

The southwest reported damage of 50 to 60 per cent to the early crop. South Central Texas also reported planting delayed by lack of soil moisture.

The market depends on the weevil report and the weather. The report to be issued Tuesday perhaps. If both unfavorable market is apt to work higher but may react if the weevil report fails to come up to expectation. The drouth in the southwest is increasing in importance as a factor.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, April 2.—Although there was no stimulating news the market has ruled very firm throughout the session. The market is a purely local trading affair and easily becomes overbought or oversold. Local traders had put out a considerable line of shorts and when it was found that the trade had absorbed the supply of contracts around 19 cents for old crops, the shorts attempted to cover and the demand from this source, in view of the limited supply of contracts, forced prices up sharply. A somewhat less favorable weather forecast and the expectation of a bullish weevil report shortly fostered the covering movement. With the demand from shorts satisfied, look to see prices again sag off.

Sugar.

New York, April 2.—Spot raw sugar was unchanged today. Sales were 20,000 bags of Porto Rican, in port and afloat, at 4.58, and 28,000 bags of Philippines, near-by, at 4.61.

Early advances in raw sugar futures met increased offerings, followed by reactions, the market closing net unchanged to 1 point lower on active positions. The opening was steady on covering and a little trade buying, prices advancing 1 to 2 points, but reacting under realizing and some hedge selling and closing at about the lowest. Trading was not very active, the early firmness of demand to broaden in the spot market and the larger Java crop estimate checked aggressive buying, with operators inclined to limit operations and await developments. The Java syndicate estimates the coming crop of Java at 2,558,000 tons, against last year's output of 2,359,000 tons. Approximate sales, 38,200 tons. May closed 2.82; July 2.91; September 3.01; December 3.07; January 2.95; March 2.88.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.80 to 5.85 for fine granulated, with demand still light.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

The Story of Fort Phil Kearney: Part XVII by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

DECEMBER 22, 1866, THE DAY AFTER THE ANNIHILATION OF CAPT. FETTERMAN'S FORCE BY THE SIOUX NEAR FORT PHIL KEARNEY, THERE WAS NO SIGN OF INDIANS IN THE IMMEDIATE VICINITY OF THE POST, AND GEN. CARRINGTON SET OUT WITH EVERY MAN THAT COULD BE SPARED TO RECOVER THE 32 BODIES THAT STILL LAY ON THE FIELD OF DISASTER.

THOSE LEFT AT THE FORT WERE INSTRUCTED TO SIGNAL THE COLUMN IF ATTCKED. THE POWDER MAGAZINE WAS WELL SOCKED WITH FOOD AND WATER, AND HERE TE WOMEN AND CHILDREN WERE PLACED UDER GUARD OF AN OFFICER WHO HAD ORDER NOT TO LET ANY OF THEM BE CAPTURED ALE SHOULD THE HOSTILES GAIN THE FORT.

PROCEEDING CAUTIOUSLY TO THE SCENE OF THE AMBUSCADE, THE SEARCHING PARTY COLLECTED ALL THE SLAIN AND LAID THEM IN THE WAGONS. ON EVERY HAND WERE GRIM EVIDENCES OF THE TERRIBLE STRUGGLE THAT HAD TAKEN PLACE. IN THE EVENING, CARRINGTON RETURNED TO THE FORT AND FOUND THAT ALL HAD BEEN QUIET IN HIS ABSENCE.

THE GENERAL AT ONCE SENT A RIDER TO BEAR THE NEWS OF THE APPALLING TRAGEDY TO THE FRONTIER POSTS. THE COURIER WAS DELAYED BY A BLIZZARD AND THE REPORT OF THE MASSACRE DID NOT REACH FORT LARAMIE UNTIL CHRISTMAS DAY.

CONCLUDED TOMORROW.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

Monday's market shows approach to normalcy. Selling resumes with determined takers. Wise ones of Wall street quit trying to guess. Pace cannot be continued.

New York, April 2.—Today's stock market was nearer normal than any session last week. The heavy selling that occurred in the last hour Saturday causing the ticker to continue printing quotations until a few minutes of 1 o'clock was resumed at the opening this morning, General Motors opening at 186 1-2 against Saturday's closing of 187 and Saturday's high of 194 7-8 and declining in the first few minutes to 184. Steel closing at 147 3-8 Saturday opened at 146 3-8. Radio closing at 186 opened at 178. The opening transactions in Radio footed up 10,000 shares, indicating support. There was evidence of support in other leading stocks at the opening. This support, however, was no longer necessary when Radio began to shoot up and continued to advance until 196 1-2 was touched in the early trading. Radio's advance checked the decline in the rest of the market and again headed prices upward, later, however, selling was resumed.

Wall street people whose stock market opinion counts for something are less inclined daily to make any attempt to guess what the stock market is going to do from day to day. Governors of the stock exchange voted today to close Good Friday and the following Saturday. Realizing the increased responsibility going on with the increased listing and increased activity, governors of the stock exchange have been less inclined in recent years to grant extra holidays. However, the existing situation is abnormal.

Many Ready to Quit.

What happened in the last hour Saturday with General Motors breaking from 194 7-8 to 186 and Radio from 195 to 185 with the ticker almost an hour behind trading on the stock exchange floor, decided many professional and semi-professional traders over Sunday to get out of the market between now and the coming holiday. Recently there has been a growing feeling that something unexpected might happen between 3 o'clock and 10 the next morning to wipe out paper profits overnight.

On Sunday Wall street became convinced for two reasons that the pace of the stock market in March could not be continued indefinitely without a break. Aside from the physical condition of floor members and clerks of stock exchange houses, it has been thoroughly demonstrated that something must be done to permit the ticker to keep up with trading on the stock exchange floor. What change will be made is not known. However, it is known that traders will not continue indefinitely to blindly follow quotations that are active from 10 minutes to a hour behind actual trading on the floor.

Money Will Advance.

Light was thrown today on the recent sensational upward price movement in American Linseed shares. For 1926 the company earned a bare 62 cents a share for its outstanding 7 per cent noncumulative preferred stock. Today's 1927 report showed the 7 per cent dividend earned for the preferred stock and $5.75 a share for the common. Increased earnings came from the company's new food products department. It is understood that if the management had been so inclined the 1927 surplus for dividends might have been even larger.

Call money opened at 5 per cent and advanced to 5 1-2 with call loans on bank acceptances again advanced.

One of today's most interesting developments was a statement showing the Sun Life Insurance company of Canada had increased its investment holdings last year to $308,450,000 against $251,239,000 for 1926, including large gains in such common stock as Standard Oil of Indiana, General Electric, American Telephone, Corn Products, etc. Gold exports for the month just closed broke all high records reaching $93,610,000 against $82,972,000, the previous high established in June of 1919.

Sold Export Discounted.

Since the outward flow of gold started last autumn we have lost $350,000,000. We still have close to $4,500,000,000 gold, not far from half of the world's supply of $10,000,000,000. All signs point to a continuation of the outward flow of the yellow metal. Germany frankly admits in today's cables that she expects to get more gold from us. England expects to get some. France is in a position to take considerable more and needs it. More of the yellow metal is likely to go to South America and other countries this year. Statements are being made by federal reserve officials, international bankers and those high in the administration at Washington which have the appearance of propaganda to prepare the public for gold exports. The message being sent out in these statements is that there will be no change in our credit position because of heavy gold exports. Wall street's interest at the present time in the question of gold exports is related, of course, to the stock market. An abundance of easy money based on our large gold holdings is the foundation upon which the unprecedented advance in stock prices has been built.

Why should not everyone take advantage of this?

For the past several years it has been the practice with us to write letters to all our regular customers reminding them that after April 1st reduced prices are in effect.

This year, we are telling them through the newspapers . . . because we should like to see everyone take advantage of the summer rates—if interested at all in saving.

It is not, we believe, generally understood if, how and why coal can be bought during a certain period of the year for less money than at another period. As a result, many families wait until coal is actually needed, and in so doing pay a premium for their negligence.

Also, it is not generally known perhaps that prices are fixed by the producers—the mine owners—and not by the wholesale or retail dealers.

All reputable dealers conform their prices with those fixed at the mines; add to the first cost of coal the transportation and handling charges, thus arriving at the price to be charged the consumer.

Therefore, it matters little to the retail dealer whether you purchase during the Spring or the Fall, for his overhead is virtually the same anyway.

But the producer occupies a very different position. As coal is taken from the mine, it must go on cars—and the cars must roll. No facilities are provided at the mines for storage, it would entail too much additional handling cost.

So . . . when cold weather is over, it means that the producer must either shut down the mines, or reduce prices to such a level that thrifty people will anticipate future needs in order to obtain the saving.

That, in a nut shell, is the story you ought to know and, if so inclined, place your order now for next winter's coal needs—at a very substantial saving.

We will gladly explain to you about our different grades, and quote prices and terms, over the telephone.

Palestine Appeal Heads Will Plan Drive Tonight

With the initial meeting of officers and executive committee members of the United Palestine appeal Atlanta campaign scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight, at the Jewish Progressive club, plans for the drive will be set afoot that will heighten in activity until their culmination with actual opening of the campaign on April 15.

In view of the inception of the campaign, for which Atlanta Jewry is to raise $30,000, the south's largest quota, toward the $7,500,000 that will be America's contribution this year, J. Saul, prominent local merchant, who heads the campaign as general chairman, gave out the following statement:

"I have accepted the honor conferred upon me with keen appreciation of the heavy responsibilities it entails. It is because I feel certain that every member of the local Jewish community can be counted upon to shoulder a proportionate share of the burden that these responsibilities vanish in the face of assured success of the campaign.

"This year's campaign for Palestine marks the end of a decade since the Jews of America first gave their active assistance to the rebuilding of the traditional home for Jews. Ten years ago, through the Balfour declaration, the British government pledged itself to aid in the reestablishment of Palestine. From then on the Jewish people who had been trying sporadically to rebuild Palestine since the latter part of the nineteenth century were able to begin work in the Holy Land on a solid foundation, knowing that whatever they achieved would have the guarantee of stability and permanence.

"Since 1917, an important chapter in Jewish history has been written. In it are inscribed the heroic exploits of pioneers who transformed a desolate land within 10 years.

"The last decade has witnessed more than $50,000,000 expended in Palestine from Jewish sources. This money was devoted to the founding and maintaining of agricultural settlements; the provision of credits for the purchase of agricultural implements; establishment of experimental stations, and in general integrations of pioneers into the life of the country. How large a piece of work this was can be judged by comparing the Jewish population of Palestine in 1917, which was 55,000, to the more than 150,000 Jews there now. It is the most inspiring undertaking into which Atlanta Jewry has entered."

SHIPSTEAD CALLED DOWN FOR SAYING 8,000,000 ARE IDLE

Washington, April 2.—(United News.)—More than 8,000,000 are out of work, Senator Shipstead, Minnesota farmer-laborite estimated today in a senate speech. He said he based his figures on deductions from Secretary of Labor Davis' recent unemployment report.

Senator Smoot, Utah, republican, challenged his figures and read from the Davis report that 1,874,000 only were out of work.

N. & W. RAIL PROFITS SECOND BEST IN HISTORY OF ROAD

Roanoke, Va., April 2.—(AP)—Despite a noticeable slump in business which set in in October and continued through the last quarter, 1927 was the second best year in the history of the Norfolk & Western Railway company, it is shown in the annual report released by its officers.

Net earnings of the Norfolk & Western last year were only $6,152,892.72 less than in the peak year of 1926. Operating revenues last year were $110,984,200.64, and the net income was $30,651,295.99, as compared with $120,409,038.27 and $36,804,188.21 in 1926.

There was a decrease in the gross operating revenues of $9,460,837.73. The large earnings last year, despite an appreciable decrease in operating revenues, is due largely to increases of $245,572.40 and $661,148.94 for equipment and joint facility rents and other incomes, respectively, and decreases of $1,5[illegible],788.55 in operating expense, $773,9[illegible].63 in taxes and uncollectible revenue and $97,158.49 in interest charges.

PREFERENTIAL PRIMARIES.

Already the national party primaries are being held and from this time forward the pre-convention fights will be hotly waged in both the party organizations.

In Michigan Monday Governor Smith, of New York, and Secretary Herbert Hoover, of California, were without opposition for the democratic and republican delegations, respectively. Thirty-three republican delegates, therefore, went for the republican at Kansas City, and 30 for the New Yorker at Houston.

While there were no contests the significance of the increases to the gains already made by them is necessarily significant. It is unmistakably the force of momentum in politics.

Governor Smith will probably get the Wisconsin delegation of 26 votes to Houston today and he is sure to get the 86 delegates, plus delegates at-large, from New York Wednesday.

At the same time, with the democrats invoking the two-thirds rule, as they must, at the Houston convention, certainly the New Yorker is yet a long way from the home plate.

There is no doubt that at the present writing Smith and Hoover, respectively, have the bulge on the situation, but the fact is neither alarming to foes nor convincing to friends.

In 1924 both McAdoo and Smith crossed the majority line several times, but neither could possibly get the nomination.

In 1912, when Woodrow Wilson was nominated, the late Champ Clarke, of Missouri, not only crossed the majority line several times but came within a stone's throw of crossing the two-thirds line.

Senator George, of Georgia, may come in yet. The people of his home state who know his great worth and his ability as a leader hope so.

At any rate, a southern man should receive the democratic nomination. We have entered the convention's back door and fed from the crumbs far too long as it is.

MONEY A PLENTY, PLAN WRONG.

When one stops to appraise the enormous gross revenues collected in Georgia's treasury—or rather various treasuries—in the course of a year it is inconceivable that schools, highways or any public service should suffer for lack of sufficient funds. There is not another state in the southeast with such gross revenues as $31,113,131.98 in 1927 except as bond issues may have been included. And yet Georgia notoriously lags behind in a great many services.

The federal aid for highways amounted to $2,669,995.14. All previous estimates, even those made by the highway department, placed this aid as approximately $2,000,000. Think of the enormous difference and of the other millions that came not only from gasoline and license taxes but from the 25 per cent assessments upon counties.

Where does all of this vast sum of money go each year? It is not charged nor claimed that it is not honestly expended, but why is it, with such enormous expenditures, we have only a 140-mile stretch of unbroken permanent paving in the state, and that after every rain automobiles are piled up on the sides of roads or must negotiate mud with all of the attendant delay and expense?

The whole trouble is the plan of building disconnected roads in Georgia. The money scattered through 161 counties, with only small patches of paving here and there, and while the expenses are enormous—decidedly more so than with a plan of connected through-state roads—the people simply have not got what is being paid for, from a practical, usable standpoint.

Without censuring the highway department THE PLAN needs censuring and needs changing. Until it is we can keep on spending millions annually and yet make but little practical progress.

ATLANTA BOOMING.

While local building permits for the first quarter of 1928 total more than $4,000,000, which is approximately $1,000,000 heavier than a year ago, and a business survey shows that Atlanta and Georgia have nothing to fear from a presidential year, pre-Easter trading in the emporiums and shops continues at a record-breaking pace.

Perhaps there has never been before, in volume and in the high values of the merchandise, such shopping as is going on now.

Thousands of visitors are in the city, many from other states, to do their retail merchandising. This again emphasizes the great geographic advantage of Atlanta, and also the superior qualities of stores and stocks.

It is doubtful if any other city in America can boast of such variety of stores and shops, and of such superior quality of merchandise.

It is no longer any use to go to New York, or other eastern trading centers, for the very latest in everything.

HONOR DR. MATHESON.

The many friends in Georgia are distinctly pleased at the great success made by Dr. Kenneth G. Matheson, president of Drexel institute in Philadelphia.

College trustees, students and friends are celebrating this week the sixth anniversary of his administration.

Dr. Matheson made a notable record as president of Georgia Tech. He labored industriously for proper state support for that great institution. He worked for less than his services would command as president of a junior college. And yet he could not budge the legislature. He finally left, and in a public statement told very plainly why he was leaving.

Since that time, under the administration of Dr. Brittain, the legislature has been somewhat more liberal, and yet it is not doing for Tech anything approximating what it should.

Drexel institute is polytechnic and is one of the outstanding institutions of the kind in the country. Dr. Matheson is one of the nation's outstanding educators and has hosts of friends throughout the south.

COMMERCIAL ATTACHE COMES.

Atlanta will have a distinguished visitor today in H. B. McKenzie, assistant commercial attache of the American embassy at Buenos Aires. He will be the guest of the Atlanta Foreign Trade club this evening.

He is a man of wide experience in matters of foreign trade and travel, and his observations on Latin-American affairs will be of especial interest to the Atlanta public.

Mr. McKenzie will speak especially on affairs dealing with trade and other relationships between this country and South America.

Following as it does the recent conference at Havana it comes most timely and will give Atlanta people an insight into some of these conditions with which they are not now familiar.

NOTED VISITORS TO COME.

There is no larger or more powerful business organization in the world than the United States Chamber of Commerce. It owns one of the largest and finest homes in the world. It does not seek to interfere in politics. It does not take any issue in legislation until it has made a complete poll of its thousands of members and then a majority must dictate opinion.

Atlanta is honored in having one of the directors of this institution, William Candler, who was chosen at the last annual meeting. Another Atlantan, Alfred Newell, is national councillor.

Two of the distinguished officials of that organization will visit the city Friday and be entertained by the local organization. They will be Ernest T. Trigg, director of Philadelphia, and D. A. Skinner, of Washington, for many years the active secretary.

The business people of this city should and will extend to them a cordial and hearty welcome.

Uncle Sam has captured nearly 500 rum boats off Miami since the first of the year. They will be sold to the highest bidder and our uncle will capture them again. No wonder this is a rich nation.

The first wife of Maharajah witnessed his third marriage to an American girl. She might give her pointers so she will understand Hindustan.

Now would be a good time to get a group picture of the democratic party of Georgia.

Senator Borah's appeal to the country for $160,000 to repay Sinclair seems to be a flop. Money is the root of oil evil.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

The Bishop's Privacy.

"There is one place, and one place only, where I can secure absolute privacy, and that is in my bath," said the Bishop of St. Albans, speaking at a ruridecanal conference not long ago. As an Englishman of the old stamp, the prelate deplored the invasion of American ways, which are threatening to make the old saying of "an Englishman's home is his castle" no longer applicable. "For I read," he went on, "that even this privacy of the bathroom, is to be vouchsafed to me only a little time longer. I view with great trepidation the coming of the day when by television my morning ablutions at St. Albans will be reflected on a screen in New York for the entertainment of the American cinema public."

Status of the Circus.

An amusing controversy has arisen in Germany as to the artistic status of the circus. The Prussian minister of education and culture recently ruled that circus performances, because they did not constitute an "advanced form of art," would have to pay entertainment tax at a higher level than that charged against entertainments, including theaters, held to possess an educational and artistic value. The circus directors of Germany are up in arms against what they regard as an insult to their profession. The directors claim that they present artistic performances which are often of a higher order than those of the modern theater. At a recent mass meeting in Dresden the directors were supported in this view by a number of clergymen, teachers and professors, all of whom emphasized the cultural, educational, and economic value of the circus. They also alleged that many plays now offered by German theaters and cinemas had "nothing in common with art."

The Lost Tribes.

The Afghans, whose king has been visiting London and Paris, have proclaimed an unhesitating belief in their Hebraic descent: they said it was not a matter of argument, but of history. It was the cusom of their historians to call their people Beni-Israil, which in the Arabic tongue means "The children of Israel." Nearly all the Afghan women and many of the men are of a distinctly Jewish cast of countenance. Many of them have Jewish Christian names, for example: Ibrahim-Abraham; Ayub-Job; Ismail-Ishmael; Ishak-Isaac; Yohia-John; Yakub-Jacob; Isa-Jesus; Daoud-David; Suleiman-Solomon, and there are many others. The Afghans recognize a common code of the unwritten law called Pukhtunwali, which appears to be similar to the old Hebraic law, though modified by Mohammedan ordinances. It is said that the feast of the Passover is still observed by the Pathan border tribe of the Yusufzai, and significance has been attached to the appearance of the name Kabul in the Old Testament, as in I Kings, 9:13, where Solomon, having given King Hiram 20 cities of Galilee in return for the timber and gold presented to him for the temple, Hiram called them "the land of Kabul." The current theory maintains, however, that the Hebrew word has no connection, except in spelling, with the Afghan Kabul. But to trace descent from Israel is not an unusual ambition. The British Israelite Word federation, a Christian sect, claims the same thing for the Anglo-Saxons.

Sermons to Live By

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY.

Text: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." James 1:5.

And whom is there that does not lack wisdom? Therefore, everyone has a personal interest in this text.

We may well call it every man's text, and every woman's, too.

Little children do not need it so much, perchance, since it is the habit of their lives to ask questions both of man and of God.

Does not this explain the uncanny wisdom which we often hear in the words of those little ones, whose angels do ever behold the face of their Father which is in heaven?

Indeed, James indicates that it must be with the entire trust and simplicity of children that we ask for this wisdom which we so greatly need and which God so liberally supplies to meet out needs.

Ask in faith nothing wavering, if you would receive this wisdom.

First, wisdom for the conduct of life in our relation with our fellowmen.

Who is equal to living by the side of an infinite and immortal being with wisdom unless it be Divinely supplied?

Second, wisdom for the conduct of the inner life of our soul and heart.

Who is there that is wise enough to handle that mystery which is himself or herself unless it be Divinely supplied?

Fool, indeed, is he who undertakes the conduct of life, whether outward or inward, without voicing constantly the prayer suggested by our text.

Every child of wisdom is justified, however, who offers this prayer.

The World and All

BY CHARLES R. DRISCOLL.

WHAT HAVE WE DONE?

When the golden age of Greece had passed on, and Greeks began establishing shoe-shine stands and restaurants instead of glorious temples to the gods, there was something remaining over from the golden age for all future ages. There was a conception and appreciation of beauty, and there were certain enduring examples of the classical Greek's expression of his sense of beauty. We have those things still, and they are among the most precious of our heritages from the past.

The great Roman civilization went the way of all civilizations, but it handed on to the English and Americans an ordered system of civil law that is the basis of our jurisprudence today. I do not know that we have done as much as we might have done in the matter of improving upon the old Roman law and adapting it to modern conditions. I do not know that our jurisprudence has kept up with our mechanics, for instance. But it is not the fault of the Romans if it has not.

* * * *

Now, what have we done? What have we developed, as the great possession of our western culture? If the next great war wipes out the civilization of Europe and America, as other wars have wiped out other civilizations, what shall we hand on, imperishable, to those who occupy the surface of the globe after us?

Skyscrapers, airplanes, radio, sanitary plumbing? No, these are items that are merely incidental to the growth of a racial culture. We would be just as civilized without them as with them, although perhaps not so comfortable.

I believe the gain made by what we know as Christian civilization is in humanitarianism. In the attitude of the advantaged toward the disadvantaged. In the growth of compassion. In the strength of human sympathy. In the development of brotherly love.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Capital Prophets See Hoover and Smith Doing Battle in November

Washington, April 2.—(Special.)—There are some political prophets here at the capital, whose past experiences and knowledge of present conditions entitle their opinions to more than polite respect, who see clear gin skies around the campaign horizon.

They agree, almost to a man, that there is not even one great national issue of a purely political character that now divides the two big parties; and that the only chance to make one such is to divide them on the paramount issue of "honesty in government."

And when that issue is brought to the front the republicans are going to do just as strong and eloquent paramounting as the democrats can possibly put forth.

Already Borah, and Norris, and the insurgent group, are being joined by the old guard dervishes in highbrow denunciations of "those few" fellows of a baser sort who soiled the ermine of the "Grand Old Party" of great moral ideas by their liquor and oil-lease rascalities!

It is really pathetic, in a laughable way, to witness the waking-up of some of the heretofore deaf and dumb republican leaders and to listen to them deploring what such bad actors as Daugherty, Denby, Fall, Forbes, Miller and Roy Haynes did to demean the "dear old party!"

* * * *

The Record Reeks With Rottenness.

These present-day dealers in indulgences for republican sins ignore the historic fact the record of the republican party from the day it got a hold on the government, reeks with all—yes, verily all—the official rottenness that the nation has known and suffered!

They count upon the people being ignorant of that history, or having forgotten most of the details.

* * * *

But, What of the Prophecies?

The prophets do not bank much upon the people rising up onto their hind legs to throw the rascals out! The people seem to expect a certain lot of looting to go on in government, especially when the republicans rule. Suppose Sinclair should get away with $100,000,000 of fraudulent oil-lease profits? That amounts to only the price per capita of a circus ticket to one performance! Why get excited and change the government bosses for a little thing like that?

Is Massachusetts going to go democratic and risk her protective tariff grafts just because Doheny and Sinclair slugged Albert Fall with "a little black satchel," or a bunch of Liberty bonds? Not much—not on your life!

Will Connecticut do so? Or Rhode Island? Or Ohio?

It is poetic, and puristic, and patriotic, perhaps, to think the voters by a large majority can be rallied to "purge the public service" by publishing and prosecuting the crimes of the party of "the old flag and an appropriation!"

* * * *

The prophets say there must be some slogan more seductive to the popular psychology than "turn the rascals out!"

Their idea is that the people are going to depend more upon the man whom they vote for to be president than upon the party or the platform behind and under him. Personality counts for more with them than eloquent planks and pie-crust pledges.

* * * *

Hoover vs. Smith.

Looking at conditions in that way the canniest of the prophets predict that Herbert Hoover will be the republican nominee in spite of all the field can do to head him off.

Looking the other way, the prophets see Governor Al Smith as the democratic nominee. They cannot figure out of the confused opposition to him any probable combination that can prevent his final copping of the prize at Houston.

The southern democrats haven't got sense and grit enough to stand four-square, like Napoleon's veterans below the Egyptian pyramids, for a southern candidate. The western democrats don't know who or what they want. Both together can't get together on any man satisfactory to both. Consequently, the nomination puzzle solves itself. Smith is the only man with a "tenth legion" that will not be beaten down!

Then comes the vital quesion, which will win—Hoover or Smith?

Right there the prophets are all balled up!

Some of them are sure Hoover would beat Smith.

But others of them visualize the result the other way. They are sure the south—the backbone, breastbone and bone-head of the party, would be as solid for Smith as it ever has been for any other democrat, and that he would carry more than enough northern states to assure his success.

What do you think about it?

THE DIARY OF A NEW YORKER

BY CLARK KINNAIRD

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Atlanta Constitution.

New York, April 2.—Signs of spring in the greatest city in the world: The old fellow with the red nose and purple cheeks, who annually anticipates the vernal equinox by moving his enormous cylindrical contraption into Bryant park for passers-by to gaze at the sun and sundry planets at 10 cents a squint. Gnome-like fellows in nondescript clothing, who emerge from the places in which they hibernate all winter, and with bootblack boxes compete with gamins for the shoe-shining trade along Forty-second street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Handball games at the noon hour, with boys chasing balls bounced from the side of the public library. Tots taking their first steps clinging to perambulators attended by blue-uniformed nurses in Central park. Emerging crocuses in Central park that are a source of wonderment to children from the Park avenue "Gold Coast." Undressed chows and Pekinese being aired in limousines. Bock beer signs in enterprising speakeasies. The reduced prices of new musical shows. Bill Boyce, Al Leach, Little Samson, Sam Kramer, and other pitchmen well known to stainremover, cornpunk, white stone and medicine buyers on Cheapside, in Lexington, Ky., Collinville avenue, and Division street, in East St. Louis, Ill., and public square in Hobart, Okla., confabbing on a Broadway corner and figuring what to carry to waiting folks in the hinterland. The office help in a physical culture publisher's office exercising behind open windows and attracting a crowd of busy New Yorkers on a pavement below. A man pecking at the winter-hardened soil in a garden atop a skyscraper in the Times Square district. Miss Peggy Hopkins Joyce on Fifth avenue without a fur coat.

When the president of one of New York's biggest corporations went around the world, his associates arranged to supply him with a boutonniere every day of the trip. They simply gave the order and a check to Irene Hayes. She's used to handling all sorts of uncommon orders.

Miss Hayes, now 30, staked her $2,000 fortune on a florist shop even years ago, after she had tried selling everything from corsets to automobiles. She was walking in the street, saw some roses in a window, and decided on the spur of the moment that was the business she wanted to be in. Now she pays one of the highest commercial rentals on Park avenue, has a host of famous and wealthy persons as customers, and gives herself $20,000 a year salary.

Florist shopkeepers, jewelers and taxi-drivers in lower Broadway became aware of the big bull market in Wall street without reading the newspapers. There is no more lavish spender than the successful stock market speculator.

Because of the possibility of super-generous gifts, an unusual number of taxi drivers began cruising up and down the Wall street district as first General Motors and then Radio began to accelerate the market.

Incidentally, Wall street didn't get as excited about the "sensational" winnings of Michael Meehan in Radio as did some of the newspapers. A score of operators are more or less constantly engaged in as large and profitable (or unprofitable, as the case may be) operations as Meehan's.

Better subjects for stories than Meehan were the men who sold Radio stock short, and then had to take losses of from $100,000 to $800,000 each.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

"The day of the hard-boiled, cynical reporter with a bottle of whiskey in one pocket and a certain cynical iconoclastic magazine in the other has passed," I saw 1,200 boys and girls, delegates to the Columbia Scholastic Press association, jot down this observation in their note books.

It was an inspiring sight to see these young people from 23 states as they listened to experts discuss typography, advertising, circulation, business management, feature writing and editorial policy applicable to school newspapers.

"I have just made a survey of the news room of the United Press," said President Karl A. Bickel, "and learned that 95 per cent of the men working there had either worked on high school papers or reported high school events for their local papers. It is the men of this sort of training who make up the majority of our reporters, editors and executives."

I never miss this convention. It shows youth in action. It tells me more than any other national association dealing with young people. It answers those critics who say there is nothing in high schools except sports and rowdyism. Reading the school publications proves that youth writes and reads something besides the account of how Nell, the beautiful heiress, eloped with the taxi driver.

Here are some of the things these delegates heard: "Newspapers are recognizing the tremendous buying power of youth, which has increased enormously within the last few years. If a newspaper can get the youth of the community back of the paper it has gained a great asset. These boys and girls will continue to read the paper all their lives and will influence others to read it."

"Cleaner news is being presented largely because of the influence of young people. This generation is the best we have ever had. One young man, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, raised the tone of journalism 25 per cent by his flights to Europe and Mexico and Central America. And that is the effort of only one clean-minded boy."

"Youth insists on fair play. It is this spirit which animates the average must have a reputation for fairness and accuracy. In other words, if the spirit of fair play which we admire so highly in sports runs through the columns of the paper, the chances are that the readers will support it, even though they disagree with it on some controversial questions."

The Greeleys, Danas, Bennetts and Wattersons may be dead but among these 1,200 delegates there were undoubtedly great editors and publishers in-the-making. One delegate—a very small 15-year-old younster—publishes, edits, prints, circulates and sells a paper in his own community. Literally a "one-man paper." A little four by five published in a small southern school and printed on a small hand press touched a soft spot in my heart. Several mimeographed school sheets showed great enterprise and small expense. Some papers on exhibition were the equal in size to city dailies. The whole exhibit of school brains and hands was splendid.

P. S.: My next job is going to be getting out a helplet on "School Newspapers," for the personal use of school editors, exchange columnists and business managers.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

My 14-year-old sister is lazy and doesn't do a bit of work or even exercise. If mother tells her something she refuses and I have to do it. Two years ago I taught her to light a match, a year ago to light a stove and now I want her to pick up her clothes.

Mother says I am always nagging because I try to get sister not to help. She tells sister not to listen to me because I'm an old grouch. Am I?

—A BIG SISTER.

Answer—your mother lacks habit training sense. You have it but I wonder where you received it. I am glad you are struggling to get your 14-year-old sister to do what a six-year-old ordinarily does. It is a pity your mother doesn't know that a child's mind and habits of thinking and doing are pretty well fixed before the age of 10.

Establishing a Balance

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

NOW IS THE TIME THE SAP RUNS.

In the spring the blooming beezer oozes moisture by the heck. I wouldn't complain about this, only that the sap, the poor sap, with chronic rhinitis, harasses one so unbearably with his reiteration of the, to him, unanswerable conundrum: Why do I stuff up and run every time I get my feet wet or encounter a cold draft?

The dentists claim, with ample evidence, that the most prevalent human disease is dental caries, decay of teeth. Some persons might think of constipation as a contender for this bad eminence, but to my mind constipation is not a disease at all, just a bad habit. It is my belief that chronic rhinitis is a good second to dental caries in the list of human disease conditions, at least in America. The dentists say that it is excessively rare to find a human mouth with no sign of dental caries—one of their guild recently asserted that only four persons in the United States have perfect teeth, or something like that. In like manner, one might assert that there are not enough people in North America with perfectly normal noses, to gather the news with which this announcement is surrounded. Seriously, a doctor with the habit of looking into the matter closely before making his guess, rarely indeed enjoys a look at a normal set of turbinates, adenoids, sinuses and what not. Even persons presumably well, who come under the physician's observation for periodic health examination or for insurance or other test, almost uniformly present abnormalities in the nasal cavities. It seems that our civilized life goes hard with the lining of the upper respiratory tract. It isn't the heat so much as it is the lack of proper humidity.

Just around the next corner there is probably a lot of knowledge waiting to be found, new knowledge, or a new application or correlation of knowledge we already have in scattered fragments. Right now, however, we can only speculate, and I am fond of the conception of Dr. John B. Todd, Syracuse physician savant, who suggests that the essential difference between "fresh air" and "foul air" or "stale air" or "vitiated air," may be a question of the amount of vitamin in the air. The very idea of a vitamin in air is original with this medical natural scientist. Of course we are all aware that the ultraviolet ray or energy of sunlight imparts to food substances their vitamin value. I mention this mere hypothesis here in order to set the thoughtful reader thinking and if possible to make fresh air more popular. Most intelligent laymen know that cooking and prolonged storage or preservation of fruits and vegetables destroys vitamins. It may be that overheating has a similar effect on fresh air.

This is the season when chronic rhinitis manifests itself more than it does in any other season, simply because right now the poor sap is at the ragged end of a winter of coddling.

If your upper respiratory lining membrane is so very sensitive to trifles such as drafts, wet feet and going without your heavy wraps, you should snap out of it, and have your chronic rhinitis properly treated by the doctor, instead of grousing about our weather, climate and so on.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Odor From Drains.

Please tell me what disinfectant to use in the drain pipes from the lavatories, etc. The company that installed them and connected them with the sewer insists there cannot possibly be any foul odor, so I can get no help from them. (W. E. M.)

Answer.—Perhaps a can of lye left in the drain pipe overnigh will clear up the trouble. All plumbers insist that if there is a proper trap in the drain pipe no foul odor can escape. The ordinary lye commonly used for clearing out grease, etc., is as efficient as any other disinfectant for drains.

Malarial Country.

I am thinking of starting a cattle ranch in the region known as the old south. This business will take me over grass land and through growing timber. How can I avoid the plague, malaria, which I understand comes from the bite of a mosquito in that section? (F. R. J.)

Answer.—For temporary protection, as during a visit or while traveling through malarial country, one may escape malaria by taking daily 10 grains of quinine, in one dose at night or in divided doses spread over the 24 hours. For permanent protection, it is necessary to drain the land near your residence, oil all standing water that cannot be drained, and make use of screens to exclude the mosquitoes at night, when they get in most of their wicked inoculation work.

If You Won't Have a Mere Dishwasher In Your House, You Must Do It Yourself

By Robert Quillen

There are two sides to nearly all questions, and truth lies between them. There are thorns with the rose, but you can enjoy the odor without touching the stem.

Congress and trade unions are concerned about Mexican labor, and many who know nothing about it are offering advice. They desire certain things, and manufacture beliefs and facts to support their desires.

It is charged that the Mexican laborer has a low standard of living and therefore can and will work for less than a white man should.

That is true. Along the border I was told by people with land to sell: "Mexican labor here is cheap and plentiful." I found the "greasers" working happily and efficiently for a dollar a day.

The Mexican peasant dreams no dreams. Give him five rooms and he tears out the partitions. He wishes to live in one room. Give him a wood floor and he uses it for fuel. He wishes to live on his mother earth. And under thatch.

He adores his family. Pay him on Saturday night and he buys a week's provisions. Then he frolics and returns to work dead broke. All he asks of life is a large family, a little music, artificial flowers, sunshine.

A white man can't and won't and shouldn't live as the Mexican peon does.

But here is a thing to consider: The white laborer wishes to work in town. He wouldn't like work on the farm, even if it paid good wages. The cheap Mexican isn't taking his job, for he doesn't want the job.

Moreover, farm labor is unskilled and therefore inevitably cheap; in all ages it has been done by a lower class, and done cheaply, for food must be cheap.

Pay farm labor $8 a day and beans will cost a dollar a pound. The trade unionist would complain along with the rest of us.

If food is to be cheap, it must be produced cheaply. Until there is machinery to do it, unskilled labor must do it for little wages. If only the peon can live on one dollar a day, then only the peon can keep the cost of food within the reach of skilled workmen.

The trained alien has brains enough to demand what he is worth. The untrained alien does work an American has no taste for.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

Washington, D. C.

How do you account for the hold President Coolidge has on the nation? I own that it puzzles me.

Why should it? He blends with his circumstances and surveys them with a sort of philosophic calm. Other presidents have exercised different qualities for different days. They were vehement in controversy and audacious of purpose because the state needed these gifts. Times of strife and change require administrative talents which would be entirely misapplied in recreative periods.

The nation demanded peace, retrenchment and economy after the delirium of the world war. Its federal finances had to be retrieved, its trade balances redressed, its debts paid. These are policies which exact quite as much visioned courage as dazzling strokes of genius or bold announcements of reform. They have been successfully carried out by the president, who embodies in them the desires of the people and in himself their considered purposes.

He stands in an illustrious succession. Scrupulous care for the financial integrity and thrift of nations was an outstanding trait of statesmen such as Hamilton and Chase, Peel and Gladstone. Great as they were in other realms of government, they excelled in this by reason of their knowledge that a state's stability depends on its monetary integrity.

Lowell, Mass.

I have a question arising out of one of your addresses over the radio. My sister is beautiful, unselfish, self-sacrificing, pure-minded and fine in every way, but her heart and health were broken years ago by a faithless husband. She is not a church member, but is alert to the best. Can you tell me what she has left to help her on?

Possessions are internal and external. We can be rich toward the unseen, yet own little or nothing which the visible world counts valuable. This was Christ's condition. We can also be poverty stricken and destitute toward the unseen and have an abundance of temporal things. This was the condition of Croesus. Yet had Christ been a Croesus humanity would have passed Him by.

Apply this analysis to your sister. She has lost a worthless husband and through him the ideals she cherished for her married life—and what is more painful to endure, her physical health. She still has herself with the radiant qualities you mention; also her life to live, dear ones such as yourself, and the God who makes her alert to the best.

Seneca faced a similar inventory in his "Medea." Indeed, your question is almost identically the one penned by him in that drama. "Husband, countrymen, wealth gone from you; what remains?" And the heroine replied: "Medea remains." Your sister's answer is the same.

Emerson says that there is a remedial force in facts. Certainly the worst trials lose some of their stringency when courageously faced. Compare the soul you describe as "beautiful, unselfish, sacrificial, pure and fine in every way" with that of her perfidious husband. In the time to come who would exchange her nobilities for such a foul, contaminating existence as his? Nobody, least of all this creature himself.

Bid your sister follow the light she has and with which she illuminates others. It will increase. The path of the just shines brighter and still brighter till the dawn of an endless day. That dawn awaits her. Those who have loved the right and hated the wrong beckon her forward. The church on earth which she should join is in oneness with the invisible communion of those who have passed through great tribulation to spiritual freedom and blessedness. I counsel her to endure to the end, when she shall know as she is known.

Evansville, Ind.

What do you think of a person's spiritual condition who worries all the time for fear he is not saved?

Saved from what? If such a person supposes that the consciousness of God's favor relieves him of responsibility for his spiritual development or from all the reparation possible for his misspent past, he is deluded.

The soul's wounds are slow to heal and some ache to the last. Others leave rankling sores requiring time as well as trust for their cure. Everything related to the religious life entails urgent conflict and the mustering of one's resistant forces to defeat temptation and sin.

What really happens to a regenerated spirit? It passes from darkness to light, from illicit attachments to loyal obedience to the eternal will, from self-centeredness to sacrificial living. But chronic worry destroys so desirable a state because it is nothing less than civil war in the heart which leaves it defenseless against attacks from without.

The victim of this morbid condition should abandon his distracting circle of thought and feeling in behalf of a mission of help and good cheer for others. Though in a solitary place he can find people there whose genuine sorrows should evoke his sympathy and aid. Let him follow Dr. Edward Everett Hale's advice: "Look up and not down, look out and not in; look forward and not back, and lend a hand." Let him strike a sturdy blow for brotherhood and betterment and leave his salvation to the God who ordains it.

EIGHT MINERS DIE AS BLAST OCCURS FOUR MILES DOWN

Keystone, W. Va., April 2.—(AP)—An explosion in the No. 2 mine of the Keystone Coal and Coke company today took a toll of eight lives, the bodies of the last victims, six in number, having been found huddled together tonight in the far recesses of the workings. Two bodies had previously been recovered. With the recovery of the last six bodies, R. M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia mining department, said all of the 275 men in the mine at the time of the blast had been accounted for. He ordered an investigation started tomorrow to determine, if possible, the cause of the explosion, which he termed a "local one," extending possibly 2,000 feet from the point of origin.

The victims of the explosion were Fred Platser, a company inspector, and E. M. Hall, A. N. Sturdevant, J. W. Cochran, Raymond Poole, Arch Frazier, John Preston and Walter Wade. The last four named were negroes. Rescue crews labored for hours to reach the section where the explosion occurred, more than four miles from the main opening.

SMITH AND HOOVER WIN IN MICHIGAN

mitted to the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith for president by the democratic national convention, at Houston, Texas.

The plan of the republican leaders is for an unpledged state delegation to the national convention of their party at Kansas City.

Only five contests for district delegates confront the voters of each party at the polls tomorrow. Three of these fights are in the republican ranks, one in Manhattan, one in Brooklyn and a third in the Erie-Niagara congressional district. There are two democratic contests upstate, one in the thirty-third and the other in the thirty-fourth congressional districts.

DEATH OF WILLIS CAUSES SCRAMBLE.

Columbus, Ohio, April 2.—(AP)—Deprived of their first choice for the republican presidential nomination by the sudden death of Senator Frank B. Willis candidates for delegate who were pledged to the senator may throw their support either to President Coolidge, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, or Vice President Charles G. Dawes, it was indicated at Willis' headquarters here tonight.

Possibility that the Willis delegates may seek to draft Mr. Coolidge, notwithstanding his repeated declarations that he does not "choose" to run, was admitted by the followers of the late senator.

Mr. Lowden is now the second choice of 34 of the 51 candidates and there was said to be sentiment in favor of him for first choice, while expressions of friendliness toward Mr. Dawes, a native Ohioan, likewise were heard today. Mr. Dawes was born and reared at Marietta, Ohio, and by many is looked upon as an Ohio "favorite son."

Final decision will rest entirely with the delegate candidates who will hold a meeting tomorrow night at Delaware, Ohio, following the senator's funeral.

WISCONSIN VOTES TODAY FOR DELEGATION.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 2.—(AP)—Republicans who have ruled Wisconsin for 30 years tomorrow will settle another round in the fight between two factions when they elect 26 delegates to the national convention. At the same time the democrats, who four years ago were able to muster only 60,000 votes out of 850,000, will pick a like number of delegates from the two full slates pledged to Governor Al Smith.

HUGHES' REFUSAL STUMPS LEADERS.

Kansas City, Mo., April 2.—(AP)—Finding their plans upset by the refusal of Charles Evans Hughes to act as temporary chairman of the national convention and keynote speaker, and by more work than expected, members of the republican national committee's subcommittee spent a day in conferences here today without having taken up discussion of a keynote.

LEE NIXON NAMED G. O. P. DOORKEEPER.

Kansas City, April 2.—(AP)—Lee Nixon, formerly of Indianapolis, assistant to the last three national republican committee chairmen, late today was named sergeant-at-arms of the party's national convention here in June. It was the first important convention appointment announced.

His selection was made at today's meeting of the subcommittee of the national committee.

must be made immediately if the entertainment for the military commands is to be held," he said.

The Fulton county commission had appropriated $3,500 for the entertainment, but was prevented from paying the money by an injunction secured by four Atlanta women. The Old Guard was faced with a lack of funds that promised to cripple the entertainment, and resolved to appeal to the citizens to either subscribe to the fund or underwrite the money tied up by the court. More funds in addition to the $3,500 must also be available, as the cost of the entertainment is expected to run between $5,000 and $6,000, Mr. McCord said.

New subscribers to the fund Monday were Gordon Burnett, $25; Ed C. Peters, $50; Robert F. Maddox, $100, and Mrs. Mattie Elliott, $3, Mr. McCord announced. He said that the hotel men have increased the amount they agreed to underwrite from $250 to $375.

DAWES REFUSES OHIO SUPPORT IN PRIMARY

of the Georgians would prefer Senator George, of course, but the poll was taken primarily to learn the status of Smith as related to the other two candidates named above.

The farm relief bill is now before the senate, with the belief strongly current that it will be enacted in a form to incur a certain veto by the president. It is freely charged that just that is what its leading supporters want so that the farm relief issue can be carried to the south at large.

Paramount Issue.

It is predicted that a veto of the bill would paramount the issue in all the agricultural states, be very damaging to the Hoover administration faction and help to control the Kansas City convention in favor of a farm belt candidate for the presidential nomination.

Also that issue is greatly needed by many congressmen from the corn and wheat areas to help their candidates for reelection.

The administration fired a hand grenade into the ranks of the agrarians today by figures showing that in 1927 there was a sharp decline in the number of farm bankruptcies, the decline being 99 per 100,000 farms in the nation, as against 122 for the previous year. The inference suggested is that farmers are not as bad off as politically represented. The price of farm products advanced 2 per cent in March over February.

FALL NAMES THREE LEADERS OF PARTY

pre-dated checks from McLean for the $100,000 but that he had not cashed them, fearing that it would embarrass the publisher financially.

From his files he produced a letter from McLean showing that at one time the latter had considered buying a one-third interest in Fall's Tres Ritos Cattle and Land company, but had dropped the deal because he did not have the ready cash.

One-Third Interest.

This one-third interest, Fall said, later was sold to Harry F. Sinclair for the $233,000 in Liberty bonds with which the government charges Sinclair bribed Fall in the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

To support his contention that the Harding administration merely carried out a precedent set by the previous democratic administration, the former interior secretary cited an executive order by Woodrow Wilson transferring the naval oil reserves from the navy to the interior department. Fall has been charged with having prevailed upon President Harding to issue such an order so that he could lease Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

SMOOT AND LENROOT DENY FALL CHARGES.

Washington, April 2.—(AP)—Both Senator Smoot, of Utah, and former Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, denied flatly today that they at any time had suggested to Albert S. Fall, former interior secretary, that he write the McLean $100,000 loan letter to the senate Teapot Dome committe.

These two senators, Lenroot as chairman and Smoot as a member of the Teapot Dome committee, called on Fall at his hotel here late in 1923, at the time when the senate oil investigators were seeking to ascertain the source of the funds the former cabinet officer used in extending his New Mexico ranch holdings. They explained then and reiterated today, that the purpose of their visit was to urge Fall to tell the whole story to the committee.

Replying to suggestions that he was the senator mentioned by Fall has having advised him to write the committee, Senator Smoot said that this was "absolutely untrue." He explained that after Fall came to Washington, an ill man, he suggested to Lenroot that the former interior secretary owed it to himself and to the committee to tell about the source of the funds with which he had purchased the Harris ranch.

"When we called on Secretary Fall at his apartment," Senator Smoot said, "and suggested that he tell the committee about the source of these funds, he at first said 'I am no pauper.' We discussed the question for some time. I finally went into the hall, where my hat and coat was, while Senator Lenroot continued the conversation.

"When we left, Senator Lenroot said that Fall had told him where he had got the money and that Fall was going to write a letter to the committee and tell the csommittee about it."

RESERVATIONS MADE AT COAST SANITARIUM.

Pasadena, Calif., April 2.—(AP)—Reservations for Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, have been made at the Las Encinos sanitarium here, it was announced today by E. B. Isett, business manager of the sanitarium.

The reservations are for a cottage which will accommodate a patient, secretary and a nurse.

GRADY PROPOSAL GOES TO COMMITTEE

take several months or may run into years.

Grady hospital's colored unit already is under control of Emory, and the resolution introduced Monday seeks to bring about a similar arrangement with the university to handle the white unit.

On December 29, 1927, the 1927 charities and hospitals committee named an executive committee headed by Dr. Marion Benson, and also named a staff, but these elections were held by the 1928 committee at a meeting on March 9 to be null and void, whereupon a new staff and executive committee were selected.

Fight Goes to Courts.

Objecting to being ousted from positions to which they had been selected for a term of five and a half years, the executive committee and a large number of staff members appointed by the 1927 committee took the matter into court, and date for a hearing on quo warranto proceedings has been set for Saturday in Judge Virlyn B. Moore's division of Fulton superior court.

He was actuated only by a "desire to do the best thing for the poor people of the city of Atlanta, and to place the hospital where the life and health of Atlanta citizens is protected from petty bickerings," Mr. Bowden said in introducing the resolution. He declared that he wished it made plain that he had no desire to offend any member of the 1927 or 1928 hospitals and charities committee, "for they are my good friends, but I do feel that better service can be secured for the poor people of the city who are dependent in a large degree upon the institution for medical protection if it is placed under Emory university."

GEORGIA SUICIDE BLAMED ON G. O. P.

ment investigators appeared at his office and checked the postmaster's cash accounts. The result of their inquiry was not revealed.

Postmaster Peterson received a telegram Saturday afternoon announcing the appointment of L. L. Sutton to succeed him. That night, members of his family said, he spent several hours writing letters and the following morning received Mr. Sutton at the postoffice and delivered the keys to the office to him.

He then was said to have walked to the rear of the office, where the full force of clerks were engaged in assorting the heavy Sunday morning mail and asked Kirkland to take him for a ride in the country. They left in Kirkland's automobile and nothing further was heard of them until passing motorists found their bodies in the machine, the motor of which was still running, on a highway about three miles from here.

At the coroner's inquest, which returned a verdict that Peterson had slain Kirkland and then killed himself, it was brought out that the postmaster several days ago had borrowed a pistol from a policeman on the pretext that prowlers had been seen in the vicinity of his home.

Funeral services for both men were held here late today, with burial in the city cemetery. Both were married and leave families.

DAVIS DENIES RECEIVING FUNDS.

Ben J. Davis, national republican committeeman from Georgia, Monday night positively denied receiving any funds from Postmaster Peterson, or from any other postmaster.

"I have not received any funds," he said, "nor have I demanded any from any postmaster in the state. As to the letter found on Mr. Peterson's body, it looks queer to me. I understand the letter was postmarked September, 1927, and that it was unsigned. I know nothing of the letter, but it bears the marks of a frame-up to me. Why should a man keep such a letter so many months? If Senator Harris, or any other senator, believes that I am guilty of exacting funds from federal officeholders in return from patronage, I will welcome an investigation."

DEAD MAN WROTE LANKFORD.

Washington, April 2.—(AP)—A letter received today by Representative Lankford, of Georgia, from L. F. Peterson, Douglas, Ga., postmaster, who killed his assistant, J. T. Kirkland, and then took his own life yesterday, advised him "not to be surprised at anything that might happen."

"The letter was written last Saturday night and received twenty hours after the tragedy," Lankford said. "Peterson went into details about several other matters connected with his removal from the postmastership at Douglas. I do not feel at liberty to divulge these details until I can make a full investigation, as a part of the details is based on opinions and conclusions of Petersons', in which he might have been in error."

Lankford, whose home is in Douglas, said that he made every effort to have Peterson retained in office, but that last week an order was issued by the department appointing Lacey L. Sutton as acting postmaster, which automatically relieved Peterson.

Harris Not Surprised.

Senator William J. Harris said: "I am not surprised," when informed that Peterson blamed the tragedy on forced contributions to the republican party organization in that state.

"The negro, Ben Davis, republican committeeman, I understand, is placing assessments on all postmasters in Georgia. The Peterson case is not an exception, but is the rule."

Senator George, the other democratic member from Georgia, said that he had no doubt that Peterson had been compelled to contribute to the republican organization or to someone who claimed to represent the state body.

"This condition obtains in far too many instances in the state," he said. "Not a few shortages developing in the last few years have been traceable to the fact that men who claimed to be the agents of the republican organization have constantly exacted toll of both the applicant for, and the holder of federal positions in Georgia, especially in the postoffices."

At the postoffice department it was said officials had no information concerning contributions to any one and that no such testimony had been presented at the time Peterson's office was investigated and discrepancies in his accounts found.

A Misplaced Comma In A Home-Made Will Can Wreck An Estate

There have been cases where a comma, wrongly placed in a home-made will, has rendered the meaning different from what the maker intended.

And an untrained executor can cost your estate thousands of dollars through his very inexperience in handling such matters.

In making or re-making your will, be sure to consult your lawyer. A few minutes with him will result in a legally phrased document that means exactly what you intend it to mean. And have him name The Citizens and Southern National Bank, an experienced, corporate, financially responsible executor.

Georgia Alumni To Attend Glee Club Concert Tonight

Merry old Georgia college songs of the type dear to the hearts of all students and former students of the University of Georgia will be sung during the program of this year's concert of the University of Georgia Glee and Instrumental club at the Erlanger theater tonight and local alumni of the institution are rallying to give the college boys a great reception on their appearance in Atlanta.

Word has come from many parts of the state, where the university musical organization has appeared, that the members this season are unusually capable and that they offer a program of real entertainment which carries an appeal to the general public as well as to students and former students of this institution.

The Glee club proper is composed of 16 young men. They offer a varied number of collegiate airs interspersed with many light and rollicking songs to be heard nowhere else save on a college campus.

The orchestra is one of the prides of the University of Georgia and this year's organization is one of the ablest ever assembled in Athens.

One of the features of the program offered by the combined glee and instrumental clubs this season is the High Court of the Red and Black, a bit melange of song, instrumental music and comedy. The Glee club then appears in many numbers while the orchestra gives a special program of old and new favorites.

Alumni of the University of Georgia in Atlanta are preparing to give the boys a big reception and the call has gone forth to every Georgia man in the city to turn out for this concert. Students of Georgia Tech also are showing much interest in the visit of the musical organization from the University of Georgia and several fraternities have arranged for the entertainment of visiting fraternity brothers.

The glee and instrumental club will arrive in Atlanta this morning in two special reserved coaches on the Seaboard Air Line railway. The concert will be given tonight and will be the inspiration of many social affairs.

The program to be offered in Atlanta contains all the best numbers used by the two clubs during this season.

Give the Painter a Chance

SOME PAINTERS think people are not willing to pay the price of good painting. They hesitate to offer an estimate based on using as heavy paint as is needed for proper protection.

Some also hesitate to use turpentine, fearing they will be accused of adulterating their paint. Much of the lumber used today cannot be successfully painted without considerable turpentine in the undercoat to penetrate the hard or resinous surface and give the paint an anchorage.

Ask your painter to estimate on doing the work the way his experience tells him it ought to be done. He might do it for less by cutting the weight or quality of the paint, but that will cost you more in the end. Just specify Carter White Lead throughout and leave the rest to the painter. He is willing to give you just as much quality in materials and workmanship as you are willing to pay for. Good painting is worth all it costs.

Easier to thin, tint and spread

Painters who have been accustomed to thinning 100 pounds of Carter heavy paste white lead with 4 gallons of oil for finishing coats (half oil and half turps for undercoats) will get paint of same weight and consistency by thinning Carter Soft Paste with linseed oil measure for measure. The greater convenience of soft paste costs the painter nothing.

SWAIN IS SAVED FROM DEATH CHAIR

Macon, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—Judge B. H. Dunaway, warden of the state farm at Milledgeville, has announced that James A. Swain, of Macon, has had his death sentence commuted to life imprisonment by official notification from Governor L. G. Hardman to the penitentiary authorities.

Swain was sentenced five times to die for killing Walter Johnson, 19, of Macon, in 1924. Each appeal had been denied by higher courts.

After shooting Johnson, following a dispute, Swain shot his wife through the arm and attempted to shoot his mother-in-law.

Dr. Paul E. Lineback, of the First Christian church, was in charge of the musical program, with Mrs. Charles J. Williamson, of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, at the piano.

Bishop Mouzon also is conducting a revival at the Druid Hills Methodist church, with services at 7:30 o'clock each night. These meetings will be held all this week, ending Friday night.

"Uncle Jimmy" Doyal Rounds Out 31 Years On City Police Force

J. H. ("Uncle Jimmy") Doyal, widely-known and popular member of the city detective department, Saturday rounded out his thirty-first year with the constabulary of Atlanta, it became known Monday.

Stationed now in the office of the detective bureau, Mr. Doyal has been a member of the plain clothes staff for the past 22 years, and during that time has served two years on the auto theft squad, two years on the homicide squad and six years on the desk.

He joined the force on March 31, 1897, when the city had only 80,000 population and the police force numbered 120 men instead of the present number of 450. His first beat was "Darktown," in the fourth ward, then regarded as the toughest part of the city.

Later he served seven years as call officer, and answered calls on a bicycle. During his entire career as an officer of the law, he has shot only two men and neither of them fatally.

He is 53 years old and lives at his residence, 605 Formwalt street, with three children, Miss Sarah Doyal, 19; J. H. Doyal, Jr., 15, and Margaret Doyal, 13. He has been married 26 years.

LUTHER L. CORN GIVEN ONE YEAR FOR MAKING CORN

Maybe Shakespeare was right, and maybe there isn't anything in a name, but just the same Luther L. Corn Monday was sentenced to serve one year and a day in federal penitentiary after pleading guilty to charges of manufacturing whisky, having property for the manufacture of whisky and possessing whisky, before Judge Samuel H. Sibley, in federal district court.

It was Corn's second offense, and his sentence will be deferred until August 1, when he furnishes $800 bond.

Arthur Strickland and McKinley Newberry were sentenced to two months in Fulton county jail after pleading guilty to the same three charges. Arthur Latham was sentenced to serve 60 days for possessing whisky.

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders *

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become under-nourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years, S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

* The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and run-down condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

JOHN OTTLEY, JR., JOINS PITCAIRN CO.

Appointment of John K. Ottley, Jr., young Atlanta newspaperman and popular figure in civic and social circles, as local representative of the Pitcairn Aviation corporation was made known Monday with announcement that the company would open commercial offices in the downtown business district.

The step, which will make Atlanta one of the most complete centers for aviation operation on a commercial scale in the south, followed publication by the Philadelphia home office of the Pitcairn corporation of the air mail service schedule between Atlanta and New York, to go into effect May 1. Test flying to familiarize the mail pilots with the territory to be covered was started Monday when John Kytle, the Atlanta pilot, took off from Candler field.

Has Atlanta-Miami Contract.

In addition to holding the Atlanta-New York air mail contract, the Pitcairn company has the award to establish an air mail service between Atlanta and Miami. The company recently opened a flying school at Candler field and now has 20 students undergoing training. In its hangars at the field, under supervision of J. Ben Faulkner, operations manager for Pitcairn, the company has six planes, maintaining a passenger service to meet all demands of local or cross-country flying.

With opening of the downtown office in charge of Mr. Ottley Atlantans will be in close touch with all that the commercial development of aviation has to offer. Mr. Ottley's office will be at 205 Fourth National bank building.

Mr. Ottley will resign his position on the reportorial staff of the Atlanta Journal to assume his new duties on April 9. Since graduating from Oglethorpe university in 1925 he has been affiliated with the editorial department of the Journal and during this time he has played an active part in the younger civic movements of the city, devoting his attention in particular to development of local interest in aeronautics.

He is a director of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and has been a leader in this organization's fostering of aviation. He is a charter member of the Atlanta chapter of the National Aeronautic associatiton and was recently elected president of that organization.

Becoming Aviation Hub.

In commenting upon the possibilities of the field to which he is turning his energies, Mr. Ottley stated that Atlanta is undoubtedly becoming one of the country's important aviation hubs. With air mail routes going into effect on May 1, between Atlanta and New York, and Atlanta and New Orleans; with the contract already awarded for an air mail route between this city and Miami, awaiting only the installation of a lighting system for further developments, and with bids to be opened in the next few weeks for awarding of a contract on an Atlanta-Chicago mail service, it becomes apparent that some of the nation's most important lines will radiate from this city, Mr. Ottley stated.

The schedule announced for the Atlanta-New York route, which will save a day or more in mail service, is as follows:

Northbound, leave Atlanta 7 p. m., central standard time; Spartanburg, S. C., 9:48 p. m.; Greensboro, N. C., 11:21 p. m.; Richmond, Va., 1:29 a. m.; Washington, D. C., 2:35 a. m.; Philadelphia, Pa., 3:56; arrive New York, 4:35 a. m.

Southbound, leave New York, 9:40 p. m.; Philadelphia, 10:24; Washington, 11:45; Richmond, 1:02 a. m.; Greensboro, 2:59; Spartanburg, 4:32; arrive Atlanta 5:17 a. m., central time.

At New York the service will be connected with the air mail service now operating through the New England states. The Atlanta-New Orleans service will go into effect May 1 on a schedule permitting a plane to leave Atlanta following arrival of a plane from New York. The plane will leave New Orleans around noon, in time to arrive in Atlanta to connect with the plane leaving for New York.

ATLANTA-CINCINNATI AIR MAIL ROUTE SUGGESTED.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 2.—(AP)—An air mail route between Cincinnati and Atlanta was suggested in a letter sent today to Postmaster General Harry S. New, by Charles A. Hinsch, chairman of the aviation committee of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce.

Hinsch's letter said the two Cincinnati air mail routes already established would need the support to be gained by feeder lines and added:

"We now have in mind suggesting to you advertising for new line Cincinnati via Lexington, Knoxville, Chattanooga and Atlanta. This new line would supplement very materially the lines already contracted for. An Atlanta line with those now contracted for would give Cincinnati air mail service to New Orleans, through Birmingham and to Miami, Key West and Cuba through Jacksonville, Fla."

SCHOOL BODY SEEKS TO REDUCE COST ON FIVE BUILDINGS

Decision to take up with J. W. Stout & Co., of Sanford, N. C., the matter of eliminating alternates to bring the cost of five new school buildings within the original estimate of the board of education, was reached Monday afternoon at a meeting of the contact committee of council, the board of education and the bond commission in the office of G. Lloyd Preacher, architect.

The committee passed a resolution to the effect that the cost of the buildings must come within the appropriation already allowed. The original estimates of the costs came to $505,000, while the Stout bid, the lowest offered, was $632,000, or $127,000 in excess of the original estimates.

The five schools planned call for expenditures under the original estimates as follows. New schools for Grant park, Edgewood and Haygood, $125,000 each; replacements at Whiteford, $90,000, and at Morningside, $40,000.

Mr. Stout is expected to arrive in Atlanta today for a conference with the committee on the matter.

ROBBED OF $214, POLICE ARE TOLD BY AUTO MECHANIC

Held up by four white who forced him at the point of a pistol to crawl from beneath an automobile on which he was working on Roswell road near the Chattahoochee bridge, Ted Minton, mechanic in the Bas garage, at Whitehall and McDaniel streets, was robbed of $215 early Monday morning, according to a report to county police.

Minton told county police that after the men had relieved him of his cash, they made him run down the road while they fired several shots to accelerate his speed. Minton rode to the city with a dairyman.

GEORGIA BARITONE WILL GIVE RECITAL AT EMORY TONIGHT

Frederic Masters Holloway, young baritone, formerly of Albany, Ga., who will make his New York debut next year, will be heard in recital at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of Emory university, according to announcement Monday by Virgil Eady, director of the Emory band, under whose auspices the concert will be given.

The young baritone will be accompanied by Miss Irene Leftwich. Governor and Mrs. L. G. Hardman will be patron and patroness for the occasion, it was stated. Gardner Allen is manager of the Emory university band, in charge of arrangements for the concert.

James O. Boone, prominent in New York musical circles and a product of Albany, himself, is credited with having discovered the young baritone. He brought Mr. Holloway to New York to develop the singer's natural talent. In New York, besides studying with Mr. Boone, Mr. Holloway was coached by Charles Albert Baker, Edwin Swain and Judson Reague, all of whom are well known in America's art capital.

Tickets for the Emory recital are available at the Cable Piano company and at the university.

RADIO-ING The Air Waves.

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

The greatest hookup of radio stations ever attempted will carry forth into the land the proceedings of the republican national convention which meets in Kansas City in June to nominate the standard bearer of the party in the presidential elections in November.

Of greatest interest to all Americans are the two conventions, the republican and democratic, which name the party nominees and the general elections which elect every four years a president of the United States. Seventy broadcasting stations, including the red and blue and orange and chains of the NBC networks, the Columbia chain, and WGN, the Chicago Tribune station, have made application.

Announcement was made Monday that all these applications probably would be favorably acted upon. The only limit to the number of stations, it was indicated, would be because of a limit having to be placed on the number of microphones which can be accommodated in the convention hall.

This bit of radio news means that practically every person owning a radio receiver will have all the news from the republican convention in his own home. For the first time in history, probably 50,000,000 or even more Americans will sit in on the party deliberations.

During the 1924 republican convention, down in Florida, radio fans in some instances knew that Dawes had been nominated vice president before the news services could bring the news in to the newspaper offics. The presidential year this year will be better understood by the great body of voters thn ever before—through radio.

Soft airs and gentle melodies will be sung tonight when the Stromberg-Carlson radio hour makes its bow to Atlanta radio listeners over an Atlanta station for the first time. Extending its already big chain to include WSB and several other southern stations, the Stromberg-Carlson artists will reach thousands of new listeners and will make thousands of new friends, we feel certain.

The Dial Twister has been tuning in on the feature every Tuesday night over KDKA for months. Never have we been disappointed. Two very evident reasons have been the selection and makeup of the program and the artists themselves. We are glad that the Stromberg-Carlson hour is coming to Atlanta and know that you folks who listen in on the air, liking only the best, will be glad too.

Do you like Russian music? If you do, tune in on KDKA at 7:30 o'clock tonight for Russian folk songs and dances played by the Russian Novelty orchestra. You will hear a waltz from Lehar's "Gypsy Love," a group of Russian songs, a group of Gypsy songs and Russian folk dances.

* * * *

The Seiberling Singers over WSB at 7:30 o'clock will present James Melton, tenor, in a beautiful aria from Flotow's opera, "Martha." Among other numbers which will be heard are "Sylvia" (Speaks), tenor solo, "That Yeller Gal That Winked at Me," by the quartet, and "Just a Memory," by the quartet.

* * * *

Then, too, we will have the Clicquot Eskimos at 9 o'clock over WSB. These popular entertainers are gaining new friends all the while they retain their old ones. Their banjos are strumming their way into the hearts of all of us while their feature and novelty programs make us look forward every week—just to find out what they will do next.

* * * *

The Dial Twister has listened to Roxy and his gang, to the Riverside Trail Blazers, the General Motors hour, to La Palina over KMOX and to modern love stories over WAIU this Monday night—and we are going to tell you, instead, about a new 50,000-watt broadcaster which is coming on the air May 1. The big new set will be called WENR. It will be located at Chicago. It is being tested out now under the call of 9XS. If you hear this giant among radio stations you will know it by these call letters until after May 1.

ROME PERMITS SETS RECORD FOR YEAR

Rome, Ga., April 2.—(Special.)—A remarkable increase of $199,240 in building permits within the city limits of Rome for the city's fiscal year ending March 31, 1928, is shown in the annual report of C. B. Bradford, assistant chief of the fire department and building inspector.

The total expenditures authorized by building permits for the year April 1, 1927, to April 1, 1928, was $611,770 while that for the preceding year was $412,530. This covers construction for the city limits only and does not include that in the immediate suburbs of the city. It is also stated by the building inspector that the $611,770 total may be considered as approximately half of the actual cost of construction within the city, making the total in the past year one and a quarter million dollars.

November, with a total of $14,922 was the smallest month of the year, while January with $197,065 was the largest.

The report shows a total of 425 building permits issued during the year, which is seven less than in the year before, but it shows a great increase in new dwellings and new buildings.

LOCAL FORD MOTOR PLANT IS REOPENED

After more than a year of almost complete idleness, the Atlanta branch plant of the Ford Motor company, at 690 Ponce de Leon avenue, reopened Monday morning and immediately began the assembling of the new model cars.

During the past few months, workmen in the plant have been busy placing the equipment for handling the new models and, although some of the finishing equipment has not been installed, the work of assembling the cars has already begun.

I. B. Groves, manager of the plant, stated Moday night that it will be Wednesday or Thursday before much work will be accomplished. New men are being assigned to their respective duties and must be trained thoroughly, he stated. Before the end of the week nearly 800 men will be employed.

Officials of the plant stated that within three weeks approximately 100 cars per day will be turned out and ready for use and that the maximum output of 150 cars daily will be reached in the early summer.

The Atlanta assembling plant supplies not only the needs of local dealers, but a wide territory, including most of Georgia and large portions of Alabama, Tennessee and North Carolina.

Miss Keener, after five years in the Metropolitan, has been given the greatest praise of American press and musical critics for her work on the concert stage.

Carroll Blames Distorded Facts For Prison Term

"A guest went forth from my roof and broadcast to the world that I had put on a wild revel."

With this sentence, Earl Carroll, noted theatrical producer who served a term at the Atlanta federal penitentiary, gives his reason for his arrest, trial and subsequent conviction on a charge of perjury, in an article "Stars and Bars" in the current issue of Liberty Magazine.

"It was this distortion," Carroll says, "invented to appease a demand for scandal, and not any alleged misstatement of my own, which was the great falsehood told in connection with that party.

"The situation was fallacious. Here a deliberate misrepresentation had been flaunted with intent to injure many persons. Yet, in the legal sense, this breach was not perjury, because it was not sworn to. Nobody was injured by the thing I was later accused of. Yet the law called it perjury.

"For the sake of argument, let us suppose that I had no scruples against playing host at a questionable affair. Does it stand to reason that I would have invited my own wife, my own sister and her husband to attend it? . . .

"On this point alone I am willing to leave it to the world whether I am not speaking the truth when I say that this much publicized party was clean from beginning to end. It would have passed on and been forgotten next day if it had not been for one man, who realized what a fine circulation medium it would be for his sensation-loving paper to describe it as a Roman holiday. There were many newspaper men there, but he alone saw fit to do this; and it was my misfortune that my one false guest should enjoy such power."

Carroll, in the article, is loud in his praise of the kindly treatment accorded him by Warden John W. Snook and he states that Warden Snook's kindness was one of the vital factors in his recovery from the nervous breakdown he experienced.
